House Votes Defense Bill Approval; Sent To Senate

Ike To Get Revise Plan Later Today

President Receives Most Of Powers He Requested Originally

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House unanimously approved today a compromise bill granting President Eisenhower powers to reorganize the Defense Department for the nuclear-missile age.

By voice vote, the House approved the measure as drafted by House-Senate conferees. There was no debate. The compromise legislation now goes to the Senate. It gives the President most of what he asked for but ignores several powers he requested.

Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee read the House a letter from Eisenhower which said that "except in relatively minor respects, the bill adequately meets every recommendation to the Congress on this subject."

Major Demand

Eisenhower submitted the sweeping reorganization plan at the outset of the current congressional session in the wake of Soviet Sputnik successes. It was a major demand on his part.

Meanwhile, Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy reported that the Middle East crisis has demonstrated that U.S. defense forces "are ready, and that they can move rapidly to those parts of the world where they are needed."

The secretary made the statement to the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee. He was recalled for what Chairman Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.) termed "an audit of the nation's defenses."

Optimistic On Missiles

McElroy's prepared statement included an optimistic report on missile development. It stressed the fact that the Defense Department has recently let a contract for the development of a liquid fuel engine with "about one million pounds thrust."

He commented that since his last subcommittee appearance two incidents have "tested the speed of our forces' reaction to situations of tension."

"One was in connection with Vice President Nixon's visit to Caracas; the other is the current situation in the Middle East," McElroy declared.

"We believe that the record clearly shows that our forces are ready, and that they can move rapidly to those parts of the world where they are needed."

Bank Robber Wounds Two

BALTIMORE (AP) — A policeman and a bank customer were shot by a gunman today when he tried to hold up a bank at a busy downtown intersection.

The gunman, not immediately identified, was quickly captured near the Fidelity National Bank at Baltimore and Light streets. He got no money in the attempted robbery.

The wounded police, identified as Donald Hundertmark, was taken to a hospital for x-ray examination. He was reportedly shot three times.

The wounded bank customer was a 37-year-old Baltimore seaman, James Cousins. He was reported shot in the stomach as the bandit blazed away with his gun inside the bank before fleeing.

Action Nears On Increases In Social Security Benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — An across-the-board increase in Social Security benefits moved rapidly toward election year action in Congress today.

The House Ways and Means Committee Reached all but final agreement on a flat 7 per cent boost in old age and disability payments, with a minimum $3 increase for all persons now receiving retirement checks.

For those workers not yet at retirement age, it would mean deduction of up to $25.50 more a year from their take-home pay because of a one-quarter per cent hike in the Social Security tax and enlargement of their taxable wage base from $4,200 to $4,800.

The committee reached informal agreement on the benefit hike

West Virginia Areas Suffer Rain Damage

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — The fourth straight week of rain drenched sections of West Virginia today as streams continued to rise and created travel difficulties and considerable crop damage throughout the state.

A number of roads were closed by high water and slides. Weather observers said there might be a break by Saturday in the wet weather spell. Most areas have had from four to five times as much rain this month than they normally do.

The worst road condition was at Alloy, Fayette County, where U.S. 60 was blocked by a slide. W. Va. 61 also was reported blocked by high water at Deepwater, Fayette County. These two roads are heavily used by vehicles traveling freeways south from Charleston.

Other closures resulting from high water or slides included W. Va. 47 near Smithville, Ritchie County; W. Va. 5 in Gilmer County; U. S. 33 near Weston and numerous secondary roads.

High water from small streams which normally are little more than a trickle flooded low-lying farmland along the Elk, Little Kanawha, Greenbrier, and Gauley Rivers. At Weston and Glenview, some water threatened to invade the business districts.

The usually hard-hit areas of Williamson and Logan apparently have escaped danger, with the Charleston, Weston, Elkins, Parkersburg and Webster Springs areas bearing the brunt of the rain storms.

Rainfall amounts for July were nearing record figures in several sections.

Eisenhower Goes To Puerto Rico

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower leaves by plane today for Puerto Rico, ending a three-day visit to Nicaragua.

The brother of President Eisenhower is on a fact-finding tour of the Central American republics.

Man Who Aided MacArthur Flee Ill Aboard Ship

HONOLULU (UPI) — The man who helped Gen. Douglas MacArthur escape from the Philippines during World War II underwent emergency medical care today on a ship in the Pacific.

Capt. John D. Bulkeley, 47, now skipper of the fleet oiler Tolovana, had internal hemorrhages Tuesday while his ship was sailing north-west of Hawaii.

When World War II started, Bulkeley was in command of motor torpedo boat Squadron III in the Philippines. He later wrote a book about his experiences, which he called "They Were Expendable."

It was one of his boats that carried MacArthur from Corregidor to Australia when it became apparent that the Philippines were lost.

Bulkeley received a Congressional Medal of Honor for his exploits during the early days of the war.

Farm Fight Tops Action In Congress

Humphrey Charges GOP Bill Is Result Of Virtual Blackmail

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) charged today an administration-backed farm bill was the result of "virtually legislative blackmail"—giving into (Agriculture) Secretary Ezra T. Benson under the fear of otherwise getting nothing at all.

Humphrey was leading a Senate floor fight to re-write the administration bill in order to preserve parity as the basis of the nation's farm policy.

The Senate late Wednesday began debate on the measure, which would abolish the "fair earning power" parity price for cotton, rice and corn and replace it with support based on 90 per cent of the past three-year open market price.

Other Activity

U.N. Force: The Senate adopted a resolution calling for creation of a permanent United Nations police force. Only Sen. William Langer (R-N.D.) shouted "No."

Trade: Speaker Sam Rayburn threw his powerful support behind President Eisenhower's request for a five-year extension of his authority to cut tariffs under the reciprocal trade program. The Senate, in approving the bill Tuesday, removed most of the President's objections but carried only a three-year extension. The House approved a five-year extension, and a House-Senate conference committee now must work out a compromise.

Crop Bartering

Barter: Disregarding administration objections, the House voted to revive the government's program for bartering U.S. crop surpluses for strategic foreign minerals and other goods. The overall legislation would authorize sale of an additional $1,500,000,000 worth of farm surpluses for foreign currencies and broaden the list of purposes for which the administration could use such currencies.

Statehood: The House Interior Committee disposed of other matters and made Hawaiian statehood the first order of business next Wednesday. But Speaker Rayburn made it clear he would vote calling the measure up for a vote this year.

18-Year-Old Beauty Seen Shah Choice

LONDON (AP) — A Raven-haired Lily Myhra Fallah reportedly has been summoned back to Tehran from an exclusive English finishing school, leaving behind a buzz of speculation that she will be the Shah of Iran's next queen.

Friends of the beautiful 18-year-old Iranian girl say she will fly to Paris next week to choose a tressure for her wedding to the handsome 38-year-old monarch.

The friends say the wedding may be sometime in October. But in Tehran, Iran's royal court minister today denied the report.

"The Shah has made no decision," the minister said. For weeks, Lily's secret has been kept at the Paddock Wood Finishing School, which lies among rolling heathland. There are 48 girls — mostly foreign — at the school.

"Two weeks ago a chauffeur-driven car arrived here from the Iranian Embassy and Lily left to catch a plane to Tehran," the school's matron said Wednesday night.

Lily is tall, olive-skinned and the daughter of Reza Fallah, wealthy boss of Iran's nationalized oil industry.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Ships and planes searched Atlantic waters off the African coast today for a small white mouse who could tell man a lot about the perils of travel in outer space.

The mouse, named Wickie, was blasted aloft Wednesday. She rode in an air-conditioned chamber inside the nose cone of a Thor-Able rocket.

The rocket, said the Air Force, performed satisfactorily. That meant that it climbed 600 miles above the earth, then angled over into a horizontal flight that reached 6,000 miles to the vicinity of Ascension Island near the African continent.

Pact With Nasser Forecast In Iraq

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — A high official of Iraq's revolutionary regime said today his government is preparing negotiations for a union with President Nasser's United Arab Republic.

Iraqi Deputy Premier Abdel Salam Aref told a Cairo newspaper U.A.R.-Iraqi committees are being formed to discuss military, political, economic and educational matters with the aim of uniting similar institutions in all these fields.

Mutual Defense Accord

Aref and Nasser signed a mutual defense treaty in Damascus July 19 but there were reports then that the Iraqi rebels had no intention of uniting with U.A.R.

Aref told the weekly newspaper Sabah al-Khbar he is looking forward to the day when all Arab countries will join.

Pakistan Seen Next

The newspaper Al-Ahram predicted a surge to Nasser's Arab nationalism also would wrench non-Arab but Moslem Pakistan from the Baghdad Pact. Iraq was the only Arab member of the anti-Communist Pact, which also embraces Turkey, Iran and Britain.

In Bonn, Iraqi Ambassador Ali Haider Sulaiman added his voice to the chorus of professions of friends for the West coming from Iraq's revolutionary regime.

Sulaiman told reporters Iraq "cannot do without the West, especially Europe" in building up its economy.

"From the beginning, the new regime has made it clear it has the friendliest feelings toward the West," Sulaiman said. "The new government will protect the production and supply of oil and will honor its obligations entered into with the oil companies."

Steel Union Halts Four Ohio Plants

CANTON, (UPI) — More than nine thousand members of the United Steelworkers Union walked off their jobs at Timken Roller Bearing Co. plants in four Ohio cities Wednesday night.

Picket lines were set up at four plants here and at plants in Columbus, Wooster and Zanesville as the third shift went on Wednesday night.

Union leaders said the strike resulted from differences of "a fraction of a cent" over a new pension contract. The company questioned the figure.

Is 'Space Mouse' Alive? Planes, Ships Search For Thor's Nose Cone

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Ships and planes searched Atlantic waters off the African coast today for a small white mouse who could tell man a lot about the perils of travel in outer space.

The mouse, named Wickie, was blasted aloft Wednesday. She rode in an air-conditioned chamber inside the nose cone of a Thor-Able rocket.

The rocket, said the Air Force, performed satisfactorily. That meant that it climbed 600 miles above the earth, then angled over into a horizontal flight that reached 6,000 miles to the vicinity of Ascension Island near the African continent.

If the rocket's nose cone was found after its plunge from space, it could solve many secrets.

Military men wanted to know if the cone could withstand the great friction heat encountered in its dive back into the earth's atmosphere. If so, it could be depended upon to shield a hydrogen bomb in intercontinental flight in case of war.

Space scientists who hope someday to send men to the moon and beyond were especially interested in how the mouse fared in the 12,000 m.p.h. journey to space and back.

If Wickie survived, it would be the first known time that a living animal had gone into space and returned alive.

Khrushchev Accepts Bid From West

U. S. Drafts Answer To Note; Talks Could Start In 2-3 Weeks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower began writing a new message to Premier Khrushchev today insisting that the ground rules be spelled out clearly in advance of a United Nations summit conference.

U.S. officials said it seems certain that the meeting will be held. But here, and in other Western capitals, the view was that the opening day suggested by Khrushchev, next Monday, is much too soon.

Diplomats estimated it would take two or three weeks of negotiations to determine exactly what countries should be included and what procedures should govern discussions.

Precedents To Be Set

Nothing quite like the proposed historic conference has ever been held at the U.N. Security Council in New York. Important precedents will be set.

Recognition of this was reflected in a stand by Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland of California that the free nations should not accept any Khrushchev conditions which weaken the U.N.

Knowland told a news conference he considered a fundamental issue to be whether the Soviet government, or any other country, can in effect unilaterally change the procedures of the U.N. by fiat of its own.

If this is permitted, he said, it will in effect have undermined and ultimately jeopardized the future existence of the organization.

Knowland's views are among a considerable flow of congressional opinion that the White House is receiving informally through liaison officers.

Invite Israel, Arabs

An idea put forward by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) is that Prime Minister Ben Gurion of Israel and representatives of the Arab states should be included in any summit conference on the Middle East.

Among conditions Khrushchev attached to a summit meeting were that Prime Minister Nehru of India and Arab leaders be invited.

Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles conferred by telephone early this morning on a reply to the Soviet Premier. The White House said they talked before a National Security council meeting.

Summit questions presumably were discussed at the council meeting. After it was over, Dulles stayed on for a private talk with the President.

Eisenhower and Dulles, White House press secretary James C. Hagerty reported, were concerned (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

Solons Want Witness Cited

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some members of the House influence-investigating subcommittee today chafed at the delay in voting to recommend a contempt of Congress citation for Boston millionaire Bernard Goldfine.

Rep. John J. Flynn Jr. (D-Ga.) said he "can't understand" what is holding up subcommittee action against Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams' gift-giving friend.

Rep. John B. Bennett (D-Mich.) said Goldfine should be cited promptly. He said the subcommittee has "nothing left to do" in the case but vote.

Subcommittee Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark.) excused Goldfine as a witness last Thursday after giving him a final chance to answer 23 carefully worded questions about his involved financial dealings.

Louisiana Girl Wins USA Title At Universe Pageant

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Lovely Eurlene Howell, 16, a blonde-eyed Louisiana, reigned today as Miss Universe States in the 7th annual Miss Universe pageant.

The sweetly smiling contestant from Bossier City, La., was chosen Wednesday night from five finalists in the Long Beach Municipal Auditorium as the field was narrowed from 15 to 5 to Miss Universe.

Choice of the 18-year-old Southern belle, 5 foot, 6 inches of poised loveliness, was popular with the audience of 4,500 gathered in the Long Beach Municipal Auditorium as the field was narrowed from 15 to 5 to Miss Universe.

Miss U.S.A. competes tonight against the foreign beauties in the semi-final round of the Miss Universe pageant. Miss Universe will be selected Friday night.

U. N. Sets Up Summit Talks Security Plan

Protocol Problems Also Aired; To Be Ready By Monday

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—The United Nations has begun working on security and protocol problems connected with a summit conference in the Security Council, and it was reported U.S. Marines may be asked to guard a 15-block approach to the building.

A source close to Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld said the United Nations would be ready by Monday to play host to President Eisenhower, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, and other government chiefs invited to attend.

Some Doubt Completion

But some sources doubted security arrangements could be completed in time. It was expected that anti-Communist organizations in New York, particularly remnants of the Hungarian freedom army who escaped the 1956 Soviet tank attacks, would give the Soviet delegation a sizzling reception when it arrived.

U. N. Security officials said they were ready to cooperate with the U. S. Secret Service, Britain's Scotland Yard, the French Surete and Russia's security organization.

15 Blocks Closed Off?

Khrushchev's sudden provisional acceptance of Eisenhower's bid to a summit meeting in the Security Council immediately touched off reports that a 15-block stretch of Manhattan's First Avenue may be closed off and patrolled by U. S. Marines. The glistening U. N. edifice fronts on First Avenue, while the East River flows behind it.

Soviet Ambassador Arkady A. Sobolev, who Wednesday night delivered to Hammarskjöld Khrushchev's "request" for a Monday meeting of the council, said he had no qualms about putting up the Soviet premier in his embassy in the heart of New York's Park Avenue, or at a suburban place the delegation owns at Glen Cove, Long Island, 25 miles from the city.

Visiting Editor Reports:

New Iraq Government Not In Pro-Red Ranks

Editor's Note—Talbot Patrick, editor-publisher of the Rock Hill S. C. Evening Herald, arrived in Baghdad two days before the July 14 revolution overthrew the monarchy. Here is his report on the politics of the new revolutionary government, written for The Associated Press.

BAGHDAD (AP)—Iraq's new revolutionary government, by actions even more convincingly than by words, has shown that it is not pro-Communist.

The first day of the revolt, Iraqi newspapermen told me repeatedly later, Communist leaders proposed to the army officers leading the rebellion that a National Guard or militia be formed to help in possible defense of the new government. The proposal, I was told, was turned down flat. During the first two days of the revolution, Communist and anti-Western slogans were red-painted on many walls and houses. Signs were put on the front of British-owned stores and firms: "Don't buy from foreigners."

By the third day, the army officers who led the revolution were bringing into the government, as Cabinet ministers and in other important positions, mature men of known ability and recognized position. Most of them had records of opposition to the former regime.

Then the army issued an order that anybody caught painting up Communist slogans would be court-martialed. Under army directions, the red paint of the Communist slogans was blanked out with green paint.

Censors in newspaper offices blanked out from the reports and editorials they read all pet words and phrases of the Communist line, according to Iraqi newspaper acquaintances.

Although there now is the censorship of newspapers, local newspapermen look forward to a time when the new government feels more safely established. They hope then for more freedom than under the royal regime.

Iraqis who were interested and sympathetic observers of the new revolutionary government said the new regime definitely does not intend that Iraq become a part of the United Arab Republic of Egypt and Syria.

There is a strong conviction that eventually there will be a single Arab nation, but not one dominated by Egypt, as the U.A.R. is.

All but six of the 36 men who have served as vice presidents of the U. S. were either lawyers or had studied law.

Police Locate 'Lost' Mother Of Young Tot

Girl, 3, Apparently Left In Bus Station By Baltimore Woman

NEWARK, N. J. (AP)—Police have found little Roseanne Chaput's mother.

But they say the mother may not be the "mommy" the girl asked for when she was found abandoned in Pennsylvania station here Tuesday night.

The 3-year-old child was identified yesterday as the daughter of Mrs. Margaret Chaput, 38, of Baltimore, an attendant at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

Police said Roseanne will be turned over to an aunt, Mrs. Louis Chiavaro of New York City, Mrs. Chaput's sister.

Roseanne has lived most of her life with Mrs. Chiavaro. Police said it was Mrs. Chiavaro the child meant when she cried "I want my mommy" on being found next to a bundle of her clothes at the station.

Her family was traced through the name of a cousin, Geraldine Chiavaro. The name was taped to one of Roseanne's undergarments. As for the child's natural mother, police said it was she who left Roseanne at the station.

They quoted her as saying she had gone to the Chiavaros Tuesday to take Roseanne back home with her.

Reaching Newark on the way to Baltimore, Mrs. Chaput said she left Roseanne with a woman while she went for sandwiches. When she got back, both the woman and Roseanne were gone.

"My bus was leaving, and I didn't have time to look for her," police quoted the mother.

Mrs. Chaput, who did not notify authorities, said "I wrote my sister about it when I got home."

Police said she would be charged with abandonment if she ever returned to Newark.

The woman has three other children living with her and her husband in Baltimore. Authorities quoted her as saying her husband, Leon, 54, refused to acknowledge Roseanne as his child or have her in his home.

"I have asked my sister to take Roseanne permanently, and she is more than willing to," Mrs. Chaput told police.

Abraham Lincoln received his license to practice law in 1836.

Debt Limit Hike Asked To Meet Defense Costs

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) called today for another increase in the national debt limit to cover bigger defense spending.

Symington, in a speech prepared for floor delivery, said that if this is not done, there will be a repetition of last year's cash crisis in the Pentagon.

Meanwhile, it was learned that Secretary of the Treasury Anderson already has sounded out key members of the House Ways and Means and Senate Finance committees on a further boost in the debt ceiling.

It was understood also that Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.), Finance Committee chairman, has agreed some increase probably will be needed, but has urged

John Q. Public Credited For Halting Slump

Failed To Panic Despite Crises In Last Quarter

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Consumers who failed to be panicked by the sharp drop in industrial activity since last summer are helping to lay solid ground for a new rise.

They also seem to be taking the Middle East crisis in stride. After years of one crisis after another, the public apparently is growing blasé and doesn't react the way it once did.

Rising government spending is also helping turn the economy up again—if only slightly.

Increased Orders
And businessmen seem to be regaining their confidence, talking more convincingly about a fall upturn and in some cases increasing their orders for materials or semi-finished goods.

These deductions come from a report of the President's economic advisers on the indicators sighted in the April-May-June quarter, with the month of June turning in the most convincing figures.

In the second quarter spending for goods and services reversed a nine-month downward trend. It rose by 2 1/2 billion dollars to reach an estimated annual rate of 428 billion.

Although this is well below the peak of 445 billion reached last summer, the upturn has significance because all but 400 million of the second quarter gain is credited to increased personal spending. Increased government spending is just getting under way.

Consumer Credited
The consumer, however, is taking most of the bows. He switched his affections from big ticket durable goods to soft goods and services. He even saved a larger percentage of his income—although this trend also is being reversed. But the consumer didn't panic. He bought what he needed. He responded quickly to bargains. And much of the success of the hoop-la campaigns put on during the dark days of the recession—January-February and March—generally is credited to the fact that real bargains were promoted. Family budgets may have been watched a little closer. But consumers for the most part regulated themselves reasonably—and without government controls.

So, if after the summer lull, the economy is found healthy and on a moderate upturn this fall, much of the credit must go to the public that didn't lose its head.

Bonnell Assures Dualization Of Route 71 To Delaware Line

BALTIMORE (AP)—Businessmen along Route 71 on the East of Delaware plans to link an expressway to it at the Maryland line. Bonnell made the statement in any protests of businessmen, because it will fit into the federal and restaurant operators on an interstate highway system in Maryland. He said it was too early to tell, but he said he was in favor of a proposed Northeastern Expressway to link the route plus the harbor tunnel. Bonnell said the harbor tunnel will drain off traffic from Maryland 71 and U. S. 50 which feed into the Chesapeake Bay Bridge. Some 50 businessmen along the Bay Bridge route met at Annapolis earlier this week to request that the State and travel agencies do something about the slump in traffic on the bridge. Bonnell said bad weather and generally poor business conditions are to blame for the drop in bridge traffic rather than diversion of traffic to new roads or the tunnel. He said most of the decline probably resulted from a chilly Florida (Continued on Page 24)

More Earth Study

MOST OF THE TIME the things they have been doing have not made headlines or even front pages. Yet in the end their labors may prove more fruitful for mankind than 90 per cent of the efforts that have had the glare of public attention. We're talking about the 10,000 scientists who for a solid year have been combing the earth's surface—land, water and air—in search of knowledge never heretofore possessed by man, for all his probes through the centuries of history. These scientists, toiling in a vast cooperative effort called the International Geophysical Year, have thus far turned up countless remarkable discoveries in nearly every field of search.

MANY OF THESE will have no practical value now or in the foreseeable future. But many will. And all have the intangible merit of sharpening man's thinking about his planet home, giving him as they do a broader, deeper grasp of its strange workings and its relation to other planets, the sun and to space itself. One of the big surprises, for instance, has been the discovery in the southeast Pacific that millions of square miles of the ocean floor are strewn with needle-like projections of iron, manganese, nickel and cobalt worth about $500,000 a square mile and considered recoverable. In a world where growing millions of people seem to be in a race with the earth's resources, this is no minor find. Long-term trends in climate and weather are vital matters to mankind. They affect what he can produce and where, and how he must live in various areas of the earth. A decisive factor in these trends is the size and depth and spread of the world's ice regions. Thus it is important that searching scientists now find they may have previously underestimated by about 40 per cent the volume of ice covering the earth. They have found ice on Antarctica up to 14,000 feet deep.

UNDER THE OCEAN the probes have found great new mountain ranges, and flowing eastward through the Pacific a powerful "river" whose current is 1,000 times stronger than the Mississippi's. Already heralded is the amazing discovery of a huge radiation belt in outer space, ranging from 600 to 4,000 miles out. The product of great currents of electrically charged particles spewed out by the sun, this band can interrupt radio communications and is believed to cause the celebrated aurora borealis—the northern and southern lights in the sky. What a pity the energetic explorations of the Geophysical Year are to go on for just another six months. We have mapped a mere 2 per cent of the ocean floor. There is much searching to be done everywhere. Why can't there be a vast geophysical study at least every 10 years? Man needs to know this earth better if he is to make it serve his mounting millions.

Educational Fun

IT SEEMS A PITY that educational television has to go by this name which, human nature being what it is, must drive away quite a few potential viewers: Those who are repelled by that solemn-sounding word, "educational," miss programs a lot more entertaining than many of the so-called entertainment programs. Educational television cannot as yet be seen in all parts of the country. Even so, a considerable network has been established. As a result, stations in widely scattered sections can offer their audiences the best efforts of topnotch people in such fields as art, literature, music, history, science. Programs that deal with subjects of this kind don't have to be dull. Nor do they have to be "educational" in any heavy, lectures-and-exams sense of the word. Here is a young man singing—and talking about—the folk songs that have run through the nation's history like a bright golden thread. Here is another man, wise in experience and scholarship, discussing with infectious excitement the central ideas on which our liberty is based. Someone describes the mysterious processes of atomic energy; another brings Shakespeare to life, even for viewers who may have suffered endless boredom in their high school Shakespeare courses; a sculptor draws form out of a lump of clay, and tells how he does it. Programs like that the very opposite of dull and static, are the stuff of educational television. It's too bad they have to be offered under such a name.

Plenty Of N. Y. Demos Want Senate Job

WASHINGTON — Gov. Averell Harriman of New York as of now can control the choice of a Democratic nominee for the United States Senate this fall, but he has refused to name his preference. Tired of waiting, some of the skirmishers behind the scenes are about to come out into the open.

Former Secretary of the Air Force Thomas K. Finletter, a New York City lawyer, will formally announce Wednesday that he is a candidate on the Democratic ticket to succeed the Republican incumbent, Irving M. Laves. Senator Laves is retiring for health reasons.

It is expected that Edward T. Dickinson of Albany, Commissioner of Commerce in the Harriman administration, will soon after forward confers publicly that he, too, is available.

James A. Farley, who needs no introduction to Democrats, has already proclaimed that he would enjoy returning to Washington in Laves' place.

THIS LEAVES two often-mentioned possibilities in the shrinking-violet category: Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York City and New York County District Attorney Frank S. Hogan. Mayor Wagner's aides frankly admit they are pressing him to leave City Hall for what they feel would be easy nomination and certain election triumphs.

An informed guess is that Hogan, like Dickinson, could be nominated only in the case of a Mexican standoff among the big names: Finletter, Farley, and Wagner.

The actual nominating will take place at the state convention in Buffalo Aug. 25-26. Whether Gov. Harriman's command of the situation can last that long is an open question.

ALL THE aspirants or the men who have been scouting for them, presently encounter agreeable receptions among Democratic leaders both in the city and upstate. With the exception of Farley, who has old and firm ties upstate, with some leaders openly in his corner, the candidates find, however, that the organization is waiting upon the governor to indicate his choice.

There is nothing complicated or esoteric about the Harriman indecision. He wants to win by the biggest possible plurality so he can be a seriously considered candidate for President in 1960. All the other 1960 Democratic hopefuls are pointed toward the same goal.

Harriman has another problem. Although vigorous and in perfect health, he will be pushing 67 when Democrats nominate their next candidate for President.

WHAT HE obviously is trying to figure out is how to make the Senate race contribute to his plurality in the biggest possible way, and he would like to obviate age discussion as much as possible in the campaign.

He is, therefore, cool to Farley who was 70 last May. Perhaps he would be anyway, since Harriman is truly loyal to the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt with whom Farley had a well-blazoned falling out in 1940. Also, Farley's current attitudes are conservative, and Harriman is a true liberal.

BECAUSE of his Pentagon experience and expert knowledge of foreign affairs, Washington thinks highly of the Finletter candidacy, particularly now. The delightful Mrs. Finletter, a successful author, has a wide and enthusiastic public here, too, in her own right.

But Finletter will be 65 this fall, a circumstance which Harriman in his special situation is bound to note, as he is noting the fact that the other three did not arrive on the scene until this century. Hogan is 56, Wagner 48 and Dickinson 46.

Quotes On Mideast Policy Avoided

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—A slow burn of criticism on U.S. policies in the Middle East is developing here.

No one wants to be quoted on it yet. The prevailing mood is, "Well, the Commander-in-Chief has seen fit to order troops into the Middle East. So let's back him up."

The rationalization for this has been, "What else is there he could do?" But this spirit may not last.

"This situation isn't like Korea," says one congressman, cautiously and off the record. His point is that in Korea, Communist armies crossed the 38th parallel in force. The Lebanese and Iraqi crises are more subtle than that.

ONE OF THE great difficulties in analyzing this Middle East mess is that there are so many inconsistencies in it, other congressional sources point out.

United Arab Republic President Nasser, speaking over Damascus radio after his flight to Moscow asked:

"How can the United States . . . forget its own history?" It's considered a good, tough, embarrassing question.

No one has to be a historian, or very old, to remember that only two years ago President Eisenhower successfully intervened to stop British, French and Israeli invasion of Egypt during the Suez Canal crisis.

That won Arab praise. But this advantage has been completely lost, now that the United States itself has moved its armed forces into the Middle East. And this country has countenanced movement of British troops into Jordan.

The British paratrooper in at the request of young King Hussein to save his throne and possibly strengthen his hand in reestablishing the Federated Arab State of Jordan and Iraq, broken up by the Baghdad assassinations.

CONTRAST this with what happened in March, 1956, when King Hussein kicked out British Gen. Sir John Bagot Glubb and other British officers of the Arab Legion.

That was hailed as a great victory for Arab nationalism. There was much rejoicing. Now the British are back in Jordan in greater strength than before.

Those situations are completely illogical. It is considered increasingly difficult to see how these moves can build up American and British prestige in the Arab world.

The U.S. position in the United Nations over the Middle East crisis is a little hard to justify, too, in the opinion of some critics.

In the past, the United States has consistently opposed Russian domination of the satellites and the use of Russian troops to put down uprisings against Communist dictatorships in Hungary, East Germany and Poland.

Now the United States has itself used troops to support an existing government—at its request—to strengthen its hand against internal revolt.

THERE ARE obvious differences in intent and method. But as far as the record shows, "support of existing government" is all that the Russians claimed they were doing when they moved in to save Red Hungary.

One of the great ironies of the Middle East debate in the United Nations is that the Russians could have done themselves a lot of good by approving the U.S. movement of Marines into Beirut to support the Lebanese government.

Such a position would have given the Russians a precedent for doing the same thing in a completely ruthless manner, in any part of the Communist world where trouble may develop for them in the future.

THE FAR greater danger, of course, is that American and Lebanon and Jordan will bring similar movements of Communists "volunteers" into countries like Syria and Iraq.

Soviet Russia gambled that the U.S. would not come to the aid of South Korea—and lost. The odds are considered no better that an American gamble against Russian intervention in the Middle East will pay off.

Glancing Sideways

MEXICO CITY — The plane dived through the darkness and all you could think about was that on a date in July you would pass a certain age mark and no matter what you did about it, that was a fixed date with destiny. From there on in, Colonel, you weren't getting any younger, not at all.

But you consoled yourself by thinking that that was a phrase you could use to a human baby only six minutes old; you aren't getting any younger.

Across the aisle the girl sat, beautiful, young, attractively dressed, her gloves and handbag of imported origin, obviously. Her jewelry was modest but good, she was shod smartly. Over Texas she looked up and there were tears in her eyes. You tried to look away, these being tears not of your making or of your concern. The lights were low in the long, little cabin and most people were asleep.

"WOULD YOU mind talking to me?" she asked in a low voice, looking steadily at you, blinking only once because, perhaps, the tears blurred her vision. So you nodded no, you didn't mind, and she slid over and across you, plunging down into the window seat.

"I have trouble," she said. "I know who you are and you have two girls not much younger than I am and I'd like to talk about my trouble."

You glanced a seat ahead to see if the people there were asleep and they looked it.

"All right," you said. "Use your own rules. Don't take me half-way into your confidence and expect a burst of bright advice. If you want to spill, spill. But spill it all or none. Deal?"

"DEAL," she said, giving a wavering grin. "I'm on my way to Mexico to pass a week with the parents of a boy to whom I am engaged and the truth is that some time during this week I'm going to have to take a deep breath and square my shoulders and tell him I won't marry him because I don't love him. I thought I did and let them announce it and name a wedding date and all that nonsense. Not very nice of me, was it?"

"Why did they announce it?" "Because I'm an orphan and had no one to announce it for me. No one. I have what is known as some money and no kin."

"It's a spot to be in," you said. "Not easy, but not exactly crushing, either. Then?"

"These are lovely people. Basques. American educated. The father is a teacher in an American university I won't name. Sabatinal in Mexico. The boy is Harvard and a statistical job in Wall Street. A big steel company has offered him an even better job—in times when most other people are losing their jobs. He's tall, attractive, sensitive and intelligent. He courted me in New York, where I'm working. I'm from a place in Oregon. It wouldn't interest you. I was danced and dined and long, lovely conversations and it seemed real. Then I thought I'd go to what was home and get the feel of a small town without fine restaurants and night clubs and the Starlight Roof and see how I fell."

"Two days after I got back to Oregon I knew it was dead. I'd been fetched by place and illusion in New York. I can't blame him for anything. He was perfect. But I just don't love him and I should have written to say so and now I have to say it in his father's house. It's a rugged assignment. What did I do wrong?"

"NOTHING MUCH," you said. "You were dazzled, which has happened before and will again. Back in the plain earth of small-town home you lost the dazzle. If you have made any mistake, it was in accepting the invitation to visit these people. It's going to be a blow to them."

"Did you do it because your idealism told you the thing to do was face them with your honesty? If so, bravo. If you accepted because you thought something would happen, a miracle, and take you off this emotional spot—you're wrong. It won't. Either you are mature and know your emotions or you are an adolescent in mind and emotions and have no business playing around with other people's emotions."

IT ALL BEGAN to sound pompous to you, you sounded like a second-rate marriage counselor and it was all wrong. The dawn began to sneak up behind the plane from the East and soon it was at your left window, filling the plane with soft light. You talked on, both of you, for a long time and the Mexico City Airport slid in under the plane and you landed.

"Thank you for all you said," she said, as you came down the ramp. "It was like talking to my father and I hadn't done that in a long time."

YOU WALKED into that sprawling, lovely airport building and thought: "Like her father, huh? Well! Colonel, you aren't getting any younger."

And, of course, you aren't, and to every man, high or low, comes that gray moment when a beautiful girl talks to him as though he were her father.

Ouch!

Reporter's Notebook

NEW YORK — It's a wise woman who avoids positive declarations and an all-or-nothing attitude.

The other day I overheard my young daughter, in a fit of pique, tell a small neighbor, "All right then, I won't be your friend—and I'll never play with you again."

Well, I had to laugh. It always makes me chuckle when I see a member of the feminine sex get up so high on a horse she doesn't know how to get down.

It reminds me of the sad fate of Mrs. Barnes.

The story begins about 40 years ago. Mrs. Barnes and her husband had eight children.

She was always after her husband to get a better job and make more money so they could live in a finer neighborhood. Morning and night she scolded him.

ONE NIGHT BARNES, who had stopped for a couple of beers on the way home, suddenly interrupted her in the middle of a long complaint:

"You got a mouth like a buzz saw. Don't you ever give it a rest?"

Startled, Mrs. Barnes glared at him. Her lips firmed in a thin line.

"Unless you apologize for that unkind remark, Mr. Barnes," she said sternly, "I'll never speak to you the rest of my life."

"Well, I ain't about to apologize, Mrs. Barnes," he replied.

Mrs. Barnes was a strong-minded woman, and her word was her bond. Day after day went by—and she spoke to her husband not at all. And he didn't speak to her.

He became more and more independent. When mealtime came, Mrs. Barnes would say to one of the children, "Joe, tell your paw supper's on the table, and gettin' cold."

After Joe had relayed the message to Barnes, who was only 15 feet away, he would answer, "Thank you, Joe. Tell your ma I'll come to the table when I'm durned good and ready—which will be in about five minutes."

AFTER 10 YEARS Barnes caught pneumonia one winter's day. On his deathbed, surrounded by his 11 weeping offspring with his wife hovering in the background, Barnes reared up and said loud and clear:

"These are your pa's last words, young'uns. Tell your ma the last 10 years have been the happiest of my life, and I sure am grateful to her."

Then he fell back on the bed and died, smiling.

Mrs. Barnes had the undertaker lay him out in the house. According to neighborhood gossip, she talked to him for three days and nights without stopping. But Barnes never heard a word and still had the smile on his face when they buried him.

Mord! It's terribly unsatisfying to try to punish someone and then find out you've actually done him a favor.

Washington Scene

WASHINGTON — John Roosevelt, the only Republican offspring of our 32d President, keeps busting in and out of Washington. But he's always here on the same mission. The sole purpose of the maverick Roosevelt's visits is to keep beseeching Vice President Nixon to stay the heck out of New York State GOP politics.

Brother John is chief road man and peripatetic pitchman for Nelson Rockefeller, who has a quixotic desire to be governor of New York. As a requisite preliminary, the oil trillionaire must first grab the Republican nomination. Brother John's principal job is to see that there is as little interference with this initial step as possible.

Brother John, however, is doing nothing so crude or direct as to urge the Vice President to come out for Rockefeller ahead of the Republican primaries. Young Roosevelt's exclusive mission is to make sure that Nixon does not inadvertently say a nice word about Rockefeller's most feared GOP rival, former Republican National Chairman Len Hall.

BROTHER JOHN does even this circuitously. He does not go barging in on the Vice President, adjuring him to keep even casual mention of New York's intramural gubernatorial tussle out of his conversation. John slides around the Vice President by working through the latter's political major domo, Charlie McWhorter.

When Roosevelt is in town he calls McWhorter often rather than Goldfine calls Adams. They meet more frequently than the UN Security Council.

Up to date, this John Alden secondary wooing had paid off. Len Hall is constantly making overtures to Nixon, reminding him of his indebtedness from the last Vice Presidential campaign. But, thus far, Nixon hasn't given any indication that he even remembers the name of the former Republican National Chairman.

Due to some considerable measure to Brother John's machinations, Hall is now given about as much chance to win the New York GOP nomination as Chiang Kai-shek.

It is being borne in on Hall that political gratitude does not have a long life expectancy. He realizes now that he quit as GOP national chairman too soon. If he had held on, and kept more high echelon Republicans beholden to him, he wouldn't be getting this chilly treatment now.

If Len Hall still held the whip, he could crack it every time young Roosevelt tried any of his around-the-mulberry-bush tactics. Brother John would go back to Nelson Rockefeller smarting, not smiling.

LITTLE MEAT packers want to be under the jurisdiction of the Federal Trade Commission because they say the Department of Agriculture pays little attention to them. Big meat packers want to be under the Department of Agriculture because they say the FTC harasses them with too many picaresque complaints.

The matter of jurisdiction has powerful champions on both sides. The little packers are exerting as much pressure on Congress as the big packers because they are just as powerful in the aggregate. As a consequence, many Congressmen are torn as to which side they should support.

The other day, the House Agriculture Committee strove to make some progress toward solution, but nobody seemed to be able to agree on anything. At last, in a voice of resigned desperation, Rep. Bob Poage, of Texas, cried:

"I doubt if, in our present frame of mind, we could pass the Ten Commandments—particularly if we made them retroactive."

Appeals Court To Study Slot Machine Law

Five Judges Agree To Interrupt Their Summer Vacation

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The Court of Appeals will interrupt its summer recess tomorrow to hear arguments on whether it should advance a case involving the constitutionality of a new Maryland law outlawing slot machine operations on the Potomac River.

The Attorney General filed an appeal yesterday from a St. Marys Circuit Court ruling of July 9 that the law was unconstitutional.

The five high court judges agreed to come back to hear his request that the case be advanced for argument. Because of its place on the docket for the term which begins next September it ordinarily would not come up until sometime next winter, possibly January or February.

Early Hearing
Aides of Atty. Gen. C. Ferdinand Sybert, are expected to ask the high court to either hear the case this summer or advance it for early hearing at the September term.

Paul J. Bailey and William O. E. Sterling, Leonardtown attorneys representing operators of Potomac River gambling casinos, will oppose the motion.

Judges John B. Gray and Philip H. Dorsey ruled in lower court that the 1958 Maryland Legislature "transcended its power" in passing the slot ban at a 30-day session restricted to statewide, budgetary and emergency matters.

The law outlawed slot machine operations in any establishment located on navigable waters of the state unless such an establishment could be reached by foot from the Maryland shore.

HH Only Two
It was in the guise of a statewide bill, but the two circuit judges held it hit directly at only two Maryland counties—Charles and St. Marys—and the slot machines they license on the Potomac River off the Virginia shoreline. Therefore, they said, it was local legislation and not a fit subject for the 30-day session.

The suit challenging the law was filed by operators of the Potomac establishments. They sought an order restraining Sheriff Robert Miodzinski of St. Marys and Avery C. Monroe of Charles from enforcing the slot machine ban in their casinos.

The State's appeal was filed on behalf of the two sheriffs. Under normal procedure, a transcript of the case and the opinion of Judges would be forwarded to the Court of Appeals and each side would submit briefs containing their arguments before the high court heard the constitutional issue.

Item On Men's Manners Causes Stir

By GAY PAULEY

UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Well, all I said was that New York men had misplaced their manners. And then came the deluge!

Letters on the subject of men and chivalry poured in from both sexes and all parts of the nation, commenting on my recent gripe that men raced me for cabs, subway seats, elevators and telephone booths; that, in short, men were NOT behaving like gentlemen. Or, like this girl born a little farther south than Manhattan had grown up expecting them to.

Whimsical letters, some of them in rhyme, came across the desk. So did letters agreeing the "100 per cent American boys" no longer had the virtue of good manners, but saying we women could take some of the blame because we competed with men for jobs and we'd lost some of our own femininity. And most of all, letters from irate males castigating me for carping. Some samples:

"Go Home"
From a "fan" in San Diego who signed himself "A New Yorker." "I would like to compliment you on being the biggest blowhard in New York City—quite a feat in a city so large."

"Having worked in New York for the last decade, leaving your wonderful chivalrous South to do so, it must have become etched in your feeble little mind that you weren't the only one to leave the hills in search of civilization."

"Please, lady, go home and take your playmates with you."

A reader named Steve Bennett, 20, who signed his letter "an American, an Oklahoman, and a gentleman" agreed manners were gone but said it was because women "have become too independent. They are trying to place themselves on the same level as men socially, economically and every other way. When women start acting like ladies, then men will start acting like gentlemen."

Both At Fault
"I agree that there is a dearth of good manners," wrote Theodore H. Friedenberg, in "Letters to the Editor" in the Philadelphia Bulletin. "But she (this columnist) should have been more accurate to address her remarks to both men and women rather than only men."

"On countless occasions, while sitting on a bus or subway, I have been bugged by some woman's pocketbook without so much as a 'Sorry' or 'Excuse me'."

Another Philadelphian devoted three pages to tell me that "chivalry is indeed dead. Where we part company, however, is who killed it."

"Just try protecting one of those 'weak' females," he wrote. "If you don't end up on your back in a gutter, you'll at least need a couple of Philadelphia lawyers to get you out of the pokey. Generally the male is too busy protecting himself from some female to have time being chivalrous."

Bad Everywhere
"Let me tell you—New York doesn't have a corner on bad manners by any means," Ted Krec wrote in his weekly column that week in the Long Beach, Calif., Independent-Press-Telegram. "Boorishness is running rampant in the good old U.S.A."

In 20 lines of poetry on today's not so fair maiden: W. C. Clement Jr., of Abernathy, Tex., complained:

"No gallant deed her knight will pass her by... And hold within Krec wrote in his weekly column that week in the Long Beach, Calif., Indeserve that this program has been given such a fine physical plant and place for the exchange of ideas and that provisions have been made for maintaining a very fine faculty."

Heat Ailment Terminology Is Changed

Sun Stroke Now Obsolete Along With "Neurotic"

By DELOS SMITH
UPI Science Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—In hot summer weather it will cool you to know there is a scientific movement afoot to pin the tag, "neurotic," on some of the people who lose their pep when the sun is boiling and the humidity is high—people who can't work, eat, or sleep right and get extremely irritable.

More cooling scientific news is that the term, "sun stroke," is obsolete and some scientists want to abolish it. The term is inaccurate, that's what is wrong with it. It isn't the sun which strikes the victims down, but the failure of their own "heat regulating" chemistry. It probably wasn't too good in the first place.

All this stems from planned revisions of the international statistical classification of the World Health Organization. Its main idea is for all medical men of all countries to classify all bodily disorders in the same way. Then they can all be given code numbers which will have the same meanings everywhere.

Abolish Number
The code number for "sun-stroke" now is N 981.1. The proposal is to abolish the number and rely entirely on the number for "heat stroke" (N 981.0) which is something that can be set off by any intense, sustained heat, such as that of a furnace or the deep interior of a coal mine.

There now is no code number for what the revisers have classified as "chronic heat neurotic reaction," and they would like for it to have one. It is caused by "prolonged exposure to a hot environment," they said. The symptoms are "loss of energy, initiative, interest; difficulty in concentrating, working and sleeping; complaints of dizziness, 'black-outs,' loss of weight and appetite; irritability; bad temper, depression." There may or may not be something wrong with them physically, but there is with their emotions and nerves.

But on the whole matter of heat and the human body, there is much medical confusion, the revisers said, and they suggested reducing a hodge-podge of descriptive terms, many of which do not describe, to a mere 14. These would be grouped into general categories, such as:

Failure or impairment of the bodily heat regulating "mechanism," which by opening and closing pores, by widening or narrowing blood vessels, by increased or decreased blood circulation, and by other means, keeps the interior body temperature the same no matter how hot (or cold) it is outside. Complete failure of this "mechanism" is a grave occurrence; it is often fatal.

Salt Needed
"Salt deficiency in a hot environment." This causes a variety of bodily disturbances, mainly muscular cramps. Much sweating takes body salt with it. More salt in the diet corrects that.

Various disturbances of the sweat glands themselves. Perhaps the chemical thermostats are messed up and the glands don't respond. Maybe the channels are blocked and though they want to produce sweat, the sweat doesn't get out. This leads to summer discomforts of a number of kinds, such as prickly heat and similar skin troubles. Incidentally, medical science deplores efforts to prevent sweating. Sweat whether honest or not is healthful.

The proposed revisions, worked out by the British Medical Research Council, are being considered by co-operating groups here and in all other countries.

Contract Talks Start

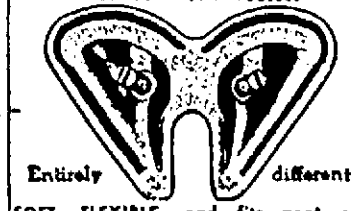

DETROIT (UPI)—The United? Workers and Bendix Aviation Corp. started negotiations here today for a contract covering about 12,000 workers in seven Bendix plants in Michigan, New Jersey, New York, Indiana and California.

Men Facing Jury Action In Murders

GREENSBURG, Pa. (UPI)—The Westmoreland County Grand Jury will convene July 31 to determine whether a West Virginia soldier and a salesman from Ellwood City, Pa., should stand trial for murder.

Separate murder charges have been filed against Pvt. Frank Siggers, 23, Williamson, W. Va., and Elmer C. Linde, 54, Ellwood City. Siggers, stationed at the Hermitage Nike site near here, was charged with the April 4 fatal shooting of Mrs. Elizabeth Paige, 45, at her home near Sutersville.

Siggers suffered a self-inflicted gunshot wound of the head. Linde is charged with shooting to death Mrs. Velma R. Nolan, a 45-year-old divorcee, at her home in Hempfield Twp., near Jeannette last June 13. Linde also suffered a self-inflicted wound, in the stomach.

Ernie Ford Evasive On Fall Plans

By GABRIEL DAVIDSON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Tennessee Ernie Ford was asked if he planned any changes in his television shows this fall. He didn't say yes or no or maybe. He said: "No use digging bait when you got a boatload of fish."

That's a Fordism. Ernie's no simple yes or no man. When the occasion calls for it he comes out with a country-style metaphor to fit. And usually it fits very nicely.

Asked for a few typical Ford phrases, he came up with a hefty list, some of Tennessee origin and others coined by Ernie. Here they are, mostly self-explanatory:

"I'm tired as a two-pound hen that's laid a three-pound egg."

"Thicker than fleas on a wet dog."

"Colder than a beaver's belly."

"I handed you a bucket, you may as well milk."

"Nervous as a long-tailed cat in a roomful of rocking chairs."

"I feel like I been rode hard and put away wet."

"She's built like a sackful of doorknobs."

"Redder than a gander's feet in a huckleberry patch."

"Tossed me from the buggy before I was finished riding."

"It's as useful as a milking stool under a bull."

"It caused as much talk as a new rooster in the hen house."

Ford is doing very well in television and is his mainstay. Unlike many other entertainers, he does not make movies or go out on night club dates, although he does appear at state and county fairs. His other entertainment activity is making records.

Ole Ernie is a strong believer in the relaxed, comfortable school of television.

"Bringing a show into the home is altogether different from the theater or a night club," he commented. "I keep remembering that I am being watched in the living room, where people are relaxed—where Pop is in his shirt-sleeves, and where there is no baby sitter and they can change the channel at any moment."

Maybe the hillbilly singer has got himself a pretty good formula. At any rate, while his network (NBC) was retrenching and still hadn't re-sold many of its shows for the fall season, Ford was already signed up tight by his old sponsor and already making commercials for fall.

July Tax Collections Exceed $3,000 Daily

Tax Collector J. Wallace Close at the Court House reported yesterday that daily collections of county and state real estate taxes have been averaging between $3,000 and $4,000 during the month of July.

Collections during July are entitled to a four per cent discount on county taxes. In August the discount drops to three per cent, and in September a one-half per cent penalty will be charged.

Parsons Granted Water Rate Hike

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The city of Parsons was granted permission Tuesday by the Public Service Commission to increase water rates to the town's 640 customers by $8,200 annually.

The city told the PSC the increase would help finance needed improvements to the system.

Icebreaker Planned

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate Commerce Committee approved a bill Wednesday to authorize construction of a nuclear-powered icebreaker to patrol the Arctic. The ship is expected to cost between 30 and 60 million dollars.

National Coal Research Bill Held Up

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. now "bogged down" in the House encourage and stimulate the production and conservation of coal through research and development.

John D. Hoblitzell (R-W. Va.) Subcommittee on Mines and Mining Tuesday called for an early House vote on two bills aimed at establishing a national coal research and development commission. He said the measure should be brought to the floor because "it is imperative to overall security of the nation and the free world that our sources of energy be maintained at the highest possible level of readiness."

Hoblitzell noted the two bills are "in the interest of national security."

Living Cost In Maryland On Upgrade

Blame Placed On Legislation, Rulings By State

BALTIMORE (AP)—The cost of living in Maryland has climbed steadily since the beginning of the year and should climb even more during the next few months. The blame for the continuing rise was placed on recent legislative acts and administrative rulings by State regulatory agencies. Here are some cost increases: Public Service Commission rulings permitted rate increases this year for telephones and gas and electricity.

Premiums on auto liability insurance will rise 20.3 per cent as a result of a State Insurance Department ruling. The State income tax has gone up 50 per cent and a new 3 cents a pack tax on cigarettes went into effect July 1. Blue Cross rates, as authorized by the State Insurance Department, will go up 13.9 per cent effective Oct. 1. The State sales tax will go up by 50 per cent effective Jan. 1, 1959.

Longer Deer Season Asked

CAMBRIDGE (AP)—State Sen. Frederick C. Mallus (D-Dorchester) wants an extended deer hunting season this year. The deer, he says, are fattening up on Eastern Shore soybeans. Mallus said farmers in the lower end of his county are complaining that deer are making serious inroads on the soybean crop during the plants' fast-growing leaf stage. The senator asked Director Ernest A. Vaughn of the Game and Inland Fish Commission for an extension of the six-day season in Dorchester, adding a single day for doe hunting.

West Virginia Troopers Are 'Really Cool'

Summer Uniforms Lighter In Weight Than Most States

By JERRY GOULD
CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Uniforms worn by West Virginia State Troopers aren't as hot as they might appear. In fact, they're far lighter in weight than those worn by their counterparts in a number of other states. Only two years ago the Department of Public Safety adopted a summer-weight trouser and a new type shirt which is worn both winter and summer. These replaced the heavier wool shirt and trouser which previously had been worn both winter and summer. However, there had been other trials of a summer-type uniform. In 1953, a poplin, long-sleeved shirt was purchased for issue in an attempt to make the troopers more comfortable during the hot months. They wore these shirts, first without tie, then with tie and a pith helmet.

Shirts Faded
However, the shirts soon faded and it was found that it was hard to find any two the same shade of their original forest green which was adopted as the official police color by the 1955 Legislature. The poplin shirts and pith helmets were soon retired and the woolen uniform returned. This remained both for winter and summer until the present change in 1957. It was then that the 50-per cent dacron, 50-per cent wool shirt and light-weight trouser was first used. State Troopers change from the all-wool trouser May 15 and return Sept. 15 for winter wear. M-Sgt. Robert E. Lester, department supply officer, describes the shirt as "lighter in the summer and much warmer in the winter" than the all-wool garment. "This material weighs only 8½ ounces per square yard," Lester said. "And its weave permits more air circulation than you might believe." Lester held one of the shirts up to the light and one could readily see that it did permit a fairly free circulation of air.

Other States
Lester said he had conducted a survey of several other states and found that Illinois used a 10½-ounce suntan material of 100 per cent wool weave and Kentucky utilized the same weight in a tropical worsted wool. Florida troopers wear an open-neck shirt with long sleeves in the summer months while those in New Mexico have a 10½-ounce tropical worsted material for their uniforms. Asked if he thought a change in color for summer uniform might be appropriate, Col. Hazen H. Fair, department head, said he felt the forest green was "distinctive and a trademark of a highly proficient organization." "We already have a trim and comfortable summer uniform," Fair said.

Two Cars, Two Homes Trend Among Many Upper Middle Income Groups

NEW YORK (UPI)—Not too many years ago, only the rich had cars own another car. And there are some who own two big cars. Here's that old one come true: Two cars in every garage. Dun's Review devotes much space in its current issue to construction which it calls the "pace-setter for prosperity." It quotes Nathaniel H. Rogg, economist for the National Association of Home Builders on the two-house family: "Many families in the upper middle income group, with increased leisure, as well as increased income, could very well be in the market for a seasonal home. In the last decade, these seasonal homes have accounted for about 10,000 units yearly. There is good reason to suspect that with the right type of product this market can, in the next ten years, easily double in importance." The Department of Labor in its monthly labor review says: "A significant growth in the number of two-house families could develop, given favorable economic conditions." Dun's Review suggests keeping an eye on construction as a leading indicator of the health of the economy. Here is another second that comes up today—a second income. The stock exchange house of Francis I. DuPont & Co. has just published a booklet for investors, entitled: "Building A Second Income." The most practical way for the person of average means to develop a meaningful "second income" is probably through investing in good quality common stocks on a dollar-averaging basis, says A. Rhett DuPont, senior partner of the firm. "Although there is no guarantee that common stocks will continue to increase in value," says DuPont, "there is general agreement that over the long pull our economic situation will pull our economy back to a level where the stock exchange house of

Moorefield Area Project On Fuel Loops Underway

MOOREFIELD — The first steps in the construction of additional loops in the Atlantic Seaboard Company's pipeline through Hardy County started yesterday when the Pipeline Maintenance and Construction Company of Camp Hill, Pa., recruited the brush gang to start clearing operations.

The new loop in the pipeline will start at the Moorefield valve and join the Lost River valve in an 18-mile loop. The loops run approximately parallel to the original pipeline and are used as much for storage as for added carrying capacity.

The Pipeline Maintenance Construction and Equipment Company has been unloading equipment in Moorefield for the past several days, and included was one of the largest bulldozers built. The company will employ a crew of 10 to 15 immediately and will increase the crew to 30 within a week. The company expects to complete the loop within four months before starting on the next loop in Virginia near Woodstock.

The construction will consist of clearing the right-of-way, followed by grading, digging the ditch for the pipe, stringing the pipe, welding the sections into a continuous pipe, then lowering it and filling and grading after the fill. The company office will be located in Moorefield. The work crew came here from laying a pipeline in New York State.

FSTC Class Hears Resources Talks By Game Officials

FROSTBURG—George Shields, Baltimore, chief game warden of Maryland, and Joseph Minke, regional game warden, spoke yesterday to the Conservation of Natural Resources class of the summer school now in session at Frostburg State Teachers College.

The two men discussed one of a series of studies which have included lectures and field trips all over Maryland from the marshes and bays of Eastern and Southern Maryland to the mountains of the western area.

Don Emerson, instructor of the class, pointed out that these trips and lectures are of tremendous advantage to the graduate students who are teachers in Maryland and Pennsylvania.

Minke spoke to the group on protecting, restoring, and public relations in wild life conservation in Maryland. Shields explained the work of the State Game Commission, the policy-making body of the Game and Inland Fish Commission and explained the good that can be done by schools in promoting wild life conservation.

Another of the lectures given the class was by Paul W. McKee, director of the Water Pollution Control Commission with offices in Baltimore. He spoke on sources and effect of water pollution state-wide and locally.

The class also recently journeyed to Choptank Bay and Assateague Island on the Eastern Shore to study bay and ocean resources. They also visited the co, Somerset and Worcester counties to study game and forest resources. They also toured the marshes of Southern Maryland and studied the type of wildlife found there.

State resources personnel who helped conduct the tour were Fred Stieling, state biologist, who is a specialist on the bay, and John Warren, wild life superintendent, Region 3, who demonstrated wild life conservation practices.

Other field trips are planned for the class before the summer session ends August 1.

Social Planned

The Braddock Playground Association met a recent evening at the park pavilion with Mrs. Joyce Fisher, vice president, in charge.

The group made plans to hold a social July 23 featuring a baby contest. Children from one month to six years will be eligible to enter. Mrs. Ann Thomas is chairman of the contest.

Other committees appointed are: Hot dogs—Bernadine Lancaster, Tug Pugh and Ann Thomas; homemade candy and cake—Marion Bond, Sara Snelson and Virginia Logue; coffee—Florence Crowe; popcorn—Rosalind Hochard and Alberto Miller; social games—Elnora Layman and Llewella Carder; fish pond—Sue Thomas and Wilda Spiker; novelties—Gerald Snelson and Trudy Smouse; movies—Fred Snelson.

Homemakers Meet

The Frostburg Homemakers Club was entertained at the home of Mrs. Robert Wilson a recent evening.

Mrs. Perry Myers, president, opened the meeting with the reading of the 23rd Psalm and a challenge for homemakers.

Mrs. Margaret Williams, music chairman, gave the history of the hymn of the month, "God of Our Fathers." She led the group in singing the hymn and other patriotic songs.

A report was made of the progress to improve the cut along Eckhart Flat where the new part of the highway was cut through the mountain. The club is sponsoring this project and Miss Margaret Jones is chairman.

Plans were made to present a demonstration at the Cumberland Fair, August 18-22. This demonstration will be given Friday, August 22, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Mrs. Myers announced the club will begin classes in designing and hooking rugs and making lamp shades. These classes will begin in the fall when vacations are over.

The next event of the club will be a family picnic August 26 at Braddock Park.

Indictments Reported By Grand Jurors

KEYSER—A total of 22 persons were indicted in 21 separate indictments returned by the grand jury on the opening day of Mineral County Circuit Court this week for what is believed to be a record.

Veteran court attaches said they did not remember so many indictments being returned in the county before.

What swelled the number of indictments were several against persons for driving or owning trucks that were overloaded. Seven persons or firms were indicted on that charge alone.

Prosecuting Attorney Donald C. Hott said he was taking the overload cases, especially where possible fines were $100 or more, to Circuit Court "because the weight law is complicated and should not be tried in a justice of the peace court."

Those indicted in the overload cases, a misdemeanor, were Burgess Brothers Farm Service, Edson Guy Kesner, Burgess and Bane, Inc., John David Kimble, Forrest Berg, Lester Call Jr. and Albert Panake.

Others indicted: Andrew Eston Simpson, felony, bigamy; Clifton Estelle Smith, felony, forgery; James R. Walters, felony, two counts, burglary; Ebert's Jewelry Store of two radios; Henry Dawson, felony, malicious assault on Leona Rawlings, of Elk Garden.

John Franklin Stewart, misdemeanor, giving beer to minors; Angelo and Ismee Panetta, misdemeanor, operating a gambling device; Charles Lewis Dalton, misdemeanor, giving liquor to a minor; Gerald Haines, misdemeanor, contributing to the delinquency of a minor girl.

There were also an unusual number of indictments for drunk driving at this term of court. They included: Elmer (Teck) Green, second offense; Ira Franklin Dean, Junior Elijah Parish, William Jennings Oates, and Forrest Julian Berg for permitting Oates to drive Berg's car.

4-R Camp Opens

Mineral County 4-H Camp opened this week at Minco Park, near Reese's Mill with 157 in attendance. There are 79 girls and 78 boys.

Serving each tribe at camp as chiefs and sagamores or assistant helpers are: Senecas—chief, Nelson Long; sagamore, James Thompson; Cherokees—chief, Samuel Umstot, sagamore, Robert Barb; Mingo—chief, Robert Suckley; sagamore, William Lyon; Delaware—chief, Tom Harman, and sagamore, Rupert Bosley.

State leaders assisting with the camp work are John Randolph, director, Bristol, Harrison County; Emmett Wilson Jr., life-guard, Clay County and Mary Lou Sechrist, song leader, Charles Town, Jefferson County.

WESTERNPORT — The second and final reading of Ordinance 16, authorizing the Mayor and Commissioners to levy a sewer charge on all property owners in the town, will be enacted into law next Wednesday night.

The ordinance was approved after its first reading at a meeting of Mayor Ray L. Wilt and Council last night. It provides that all property owners, in addition to their water rent, pay a sewer charge of one-third of their water bill. The minimum charge is $1 per month.

Any property owners outside of the corporation whose sewers empty into the Town of Westernport must pay 20 per cent additional, and it will be unlawful for any industrial plant to empty any refuse into the sewer without permission from the Mayor and Commissioners.

There will be a tapping fee of $15, plus cost for a sewer tapping fee. The present fee is $10.

The final section of the ordinance states, "All other ordinances of the Mayor and Commissioners inconsistent with or in opposition to the provisions of this ordinance are hereby repealed and void to such inconsistency."

The ordinance is being adopted to help pay for the expenses that will be necessary for the town to meet in the construction of sewers and interceptors to avail themselves of the opportunities of connecting with the sewage plant now being built in the east part of the community. Westernport's estimated cost has been placed at $250,000.

The sewage plant is being built by the Upper Potomac River Commission for the principal use of the Luke plant West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company. Piedmont and Luke also plan to connect into the plant.

Council Hears Complaint On Water Flooding Land

WESTERNPORT — Several citizens living in the Green's Addition of town appeared at a meeting of Mayor Ray L. Wilt and Commissioners last night to complain about water running onto their properties.

There was a heavy downpour Tuesday evening, and ditching to handle the rainfall did not carry it adequately to the catch basins. The delegation included Rev. Robert Shade, pastor of Mt. Calvary Lutheran Church, Nick Lupis, Mrs. Betty Farmer and Richard Cline.

Rev. Mr. Shade stated that he had about three and a half feet of water and debris in his basement at the intersection of Baughman and Greene Streets.

Several plans to help remedy the situation were discussed. The matter was referred to L. C. Lambert, street commissioner, who will meet with the property owners in that area this evening.

Council ordered that bids be received for black topping Walnut Street, three blocks east of Johnson Street.

To Become Stewards

Miss Joanne Herbert, a former member of the Fort Hill High School faculty of Cumberland, flew from Washington to Fort Worth, Texas, to enter the American Air-Lines College for stewardess. She will attend the college for five weeks before assuming her duties.

Court Asked To Dissolve Injunction

Hearing Sited In Dispute Over Mountain Property

A motion was filed in Allegany County Circuit Court today by Fred A. Puderbaugh, special assistant attorney general, requesting the court to dissolve a temporary injunction against the State Roads Commission in connection with the Wolford tavern and service station atop Martins Mountain.

Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris last week signed a temporary injunction against the State Roads Commission which ordered the agency to refrain from "obstructing, interfering with, drilling upon, setting or driving posts into or upon, or otherwise attempting to impede access or egress" from the business premises known as the Wolford service station or tavern.

The action today will result in the injunction being continued until a hearing on the motion by the SRC which is expected to be held sometime next week. Judge Harris had stipulated that the SRC may move for a dissolution of the restraining order upon two days notice.

The temporary restraining order would have expired today.

Thomas N. Berry is attorney for Thomas R. Wolford and Nellie K. Wolford, his wife, and Hattie V. Wolford, Thomas R. and Nellie K. Wolford are the lessees of the commercial property on Martins Mountain while Hattie V. Wolford is the owner and lessor.

The dispute involves the channelization of the roadway in front of the Wolford property.

Youths Swindle Merchants For More Than $130

A local youth has informed City Police that he and another youth have conducted a series of swindles on downtown merchants.

The youth said he and his friend, both 16 years of age, obtained more than $130 worth of merchandise under false pretenses.

Members of the detective bureau said the two boys apparently would find out about accounts at the local stores, call the stores, pretending to be a customer with an account, and advise the management that the boys would be in later to charge some merchandise.

The boys then would enter the establishment and pick out various items to be placed on some unsuspecting customer's account.

Meanwhile, the detective bureau is checking to determine if there are other cases of a similar nature involved.

Police said that checking into the background of the first youth revealed the lad also was involved in the theft of an automobile which later was found demolished last March.

Investigating the cases are Detectives George Furstenburg and Thomas See and Lt. James E. Van.

Bridge Work Near Oakland To Proceed

The contract was awarded to the Goldberg firm on a low bid of $157,308.

The railroad will share construction costs on the project with the state.

The three-span bridge, located about a mile south of Oakland, is a part of the reconstruction of Route 219.

Welfare Unit Head Feted By Associates

Ethel Wilderman Appointed Acting Director Of Board

Mrs. Elinor M. Westerfeld, retiring director of the Allegany County Welfare Board, was guest of honor at a dinner last night at the Cumberland Country Club during which it was announced that Miss Ethel Wilderman will serve as acting director of the board until the appointment of a successor to Mrs. Westerfeld.

The dinner was held by present and former members of the Welfare Board, with J. William Hunt, chairman, as master of ceremonies.

The appointment of Miss Wilderman was announced by Thomas J. S. Waxter, director of the State Department of Public Welfare.

The acting director, Waxter pointed out, is familiar with the workings of the organization since she has been a senior case supervisor for the County Board for nearly 15 years.

Mrs. Westerfeld, who has been director of the Welfare Board 14 years, leaves July 31 to join her husband, W. F. Westerfeld, who has become a member of the faculty of Pennsylvania State University. She had served on the Welfare Board staff for a number of years before her appointment as director.

Others attending the dinner, comprising those who have served as members of the Welfare Board during Mrs. Westerfeld's tenure as director, were:

Mrs. David Kauffman and Mrs. Mary Keyes, present members; Mrs. Anna McLane, secretary; James Orr, who represents the Board of Commissioners of Allegany County at board meetings; William A. Former members who were unable to attend, but who contributed to the presentation of an engraved silver platter to Mrs. Westerfeld, were William R. Carscaden, C. William Gilchrist, William H. Lewis and Mrs. William M. Somerville.

School Bus Fleet Being Put In Shape

Drivers First In Program With Insurance Next

The big fleet of buses that carries over 40 per cent of the pupils in Allegany County's public schools is being readied for the start of school in September.

Arthur G. Ramey, supervisor of school bus transportation for the Board of Education, said preparations will begin today, when driver applications must be obtained.

After the forms are returned to the board office, the driver must be approved. Then during the first two weeks of August he takes a physical examination at the state's expense.

Take Physicals

This is followed by a chest X-ray at the County Health Department. After all this information is in, the driver must be approved for health by a physician.

Ramey pointed out that there is very little turnover in operators, with some of them serving many years.

While this is going on, the Board of Education will open bids on July 31 on the fleet insurance for the 98 buses and ten passenger cars used to haul the 7,000 students each day to and from school.

The policy provides for $5,000 property damage and $200,000-$300,000 liability, Ramey added.

Safety Record Excellent

The safety record of Allegany County's transportation system has been excellent. Last year, the supervisor pointed out, there were only a few minor fender accidents and no personal injuries. The insurance becomes effective August 11.

Between August 11 and September 4, the opening of school, the owners of the buses must take them to garages for checkups and repairs if needed.

Ramey said the vehicles then must be taken to inspection centers on August 25, 26, and 27.

After the inspection, the bus cannot be used to haul passengers until the first day of school, September 4, Ramey added.

Swim Classes For East Side Playlot Set

Swimming classes for East Side area children and youths from eight to 18 years of age will begin Monday at Constitution Park Pool.

Sponsored by East Side Playlot, students will leave the playlot at 10:30 a. m., according to officials. The course will run two weeks.

The playground's "rock and roll" champions will be chosen today at 9 p. m. in conjunction with a dance from 7:30 to 10.

All to be selected are teenage, pre-teen and tiny tot couples. If rain halts tonight's festivities, the program will be held Tuesday.

Winners in the doll show held this week at the playlot are as follows:

Tina Baker, largest doll; Fay Smith, prettiest; Bonnie Baker, smallest; Peggy Simpson, most humorous; Donna Sturtz, most dressed; Terry Wolford, most unusual; Patricia Dooley, prettiest hair; Margaret Atkinson, largest collection (30) and Helen Cave, oldest doll (30 years).

TRANSCONTINENTAL BICYCLIST — Gary Swanson, 23-year-old Los Angeles, passed through Cumberland this morning while en route home from Boston. The young college student, who will enter California Institute of Technology, on a fellowship grant in September, has traveled by bicycle from Detroit, into Canada, the New England and eastern coastal states during the past five weeks. A former student for the ministry, he usually contacts a clergyman for information on lodging. He started out with $30 and has spent but $13.

Damage Suit Docketed In Plant Fire

$25,000 Sought From Contractor By Former Owners

A $25,000 damage suit has been filed in Allegany County Circuit Court as the result of a fire May 17, 1957 at the Pen-Mar Brick Company plant.

Mrs. Lillian G. Sell, widow of the plant owner, docketed the suit through her attorneys, Thomas B. Finan and Edward J. Ryan, against the Hout Construction Company. The Hout firm had a contract to raze the brick plant, according to the declaration.

The plant owners were in the process of salvaging the machinery for sale and claims that the Hout firm was using acetylene torches in cutting bolts and nuts at the plant when the fire broke out.

It was stated that an accumulation of grease and oil on the metal was a fire hazard and the Hout firm should have had a receptacle to catch the hot metal resulting from use of the acetylene torches.

Failure to provide the receptacle resulted in a fire breaking out and damage to the machinery. The declaration states the building and machinery were worth $25,000 and only $1,500 was realized from salvage of the machinery after the fire.

The suit docketed by Mrs. Sell has as co-plaintiffs the London Assurance Company of New York, The Merchants and Manufacturers Insurance Company of New York and the Star Insurance Company of New York. These firms provided fire insurance coverage on the plant and machinery.

College Graduate Touring By Bicycle

By PATRICK A. TIERNEY Times Staff Writer

Gary Swanson, 23-year-old resident of Los Angeles, decided to go on a sightseeing tour of the country following his graduation last month from the University of Oregon. He is doing it the hard way, — by bicycle.

Swanson, when interviewed yesterday at a North Mechanic Street restaurant, said he has had the racing bicycle on which he is making the tour for a number of years, but had never previously gone "on an extended tour."

The young college student, who will enter California Institute of Technology on a fellowship grant in September, had graduated from Northwestern Christian College before entering the University of Oregon. He stated that he had intended being a minister in the Christian Church before deciding to study as a physicist.

Bicycle Shipped

Swanson secured a ride to Detroit with one of his university professors, and had his mother ship his bicycle there. From Detroit, he rode into Canada to see Niagara Falls, and then traveled down into Rochester and Troy, N. Y., before visiting points of interest in Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island.

His longest stop was in New York City, where he spent three days. From the Empire City, Swanson traveled to Philadelphia, Washington and Annapolis. He estimated this morning that he would make the return trip to Los Angeles in a little over seven weeks.

His first few days of bicycling were the most grueling, Swanson said, explaining that his legs were not in condition for the continuous exercise. Once the muscles hardened, he experienced no further trouble. In fact, Swanson said the only mountain he was unable to "pull" was Town Hill, east of Cumberland.

Received Help

The bearded six-footer expressed the opinion that he would have made Town Hill if he had encountered it earlier in the day, but that he was rather weary from covering the hills and mountains west of Frederick. He arrived here Tuesday about 5 p. m. and applied at the Salvation Army Citadel for information on lodging.

Swanson said he received much help from Capt. Daniel K. Biggs, commandant of the Citadel, who provided him with a substantial meal yesterday, lodging for the night and a ticket for his breakfast this morning at Jim's Restaurant on North Mechanic Street.

The restaurant proprietor also took an interest in the young bicyclist and urged Swanson to accept an extra helping of hotcakes, pointing out that he still had mountains to traverse on his trip westward.

Swanson said he started his traveling with $30 in his pocket, of which he has $17 remaining. He hopes to keep his expenses within that amount for the remainder of his trip.

Rainy, Humid Weather Still Covers Area

City Gets 1.64 Inches Of Rain In Past Five Days

For the fifth straight day the Cumberland area has had rainy and humid weather.

A total of 1.63 inches of rain has fallen in Cumberland since Sunday. Except for a few brief periods the sky has been overcast.

The forecast for tonight calls for humid weather and scattered thundershowers. Temperatures will range between 65 and 70 degrees tonight. Tomorrow the temperature will be in the 80s and on Saturday thundershowers are likely.

More At Oakland

In the Oakland area there has been 1.96 inches of rainfall since Sunday. Temperatures ranged from the 50s to the 80s during the past few days with overcast skies and high humidity.

Farmers in both Allegany and Garrett counties have been stymied in their work with haying stopped due to the rains. Pastures have benefited from the rainfall and in the Mt. Savage area the rain came in time to break a "drought" which had plagued farmers for several weeks.

Pool Business Down

Swimming pools in the area have had little or no business this week and campers on Deep Creek Lake and along the South Branch have had miserable weather to contend with this week.

Gardens have benefited from the rain, particularly lawns. Joseph M. Steger, county farm agent, said Theodore Bissell, entomologist from the University of Maryland, was here yesterday to check on the infestation of bagworms on ornamental trees.

Bissell recommends that ornamentals and trees affected by the bagworms be sprayed with a solution of 25 per cent wettable malathion. One cup of malathion will make three gallons of spray. Lead arsenate can also be used as a spray, Bissell said.

Attending the conference were Mayor J. Edwin Keach, City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum, City Attorney William R. Carscaden and Simon K. Carroll, the city's water distribution and maintenance superintendent.

Also attending were Norman M. Pritchett, chief engineer of the SRC, in whose office the meeting was held, and Major Gen. Milton A. Reckord, adjutant general of the Maryland Military Department.

Six Per Cent Grade

Pritchett explained that a 60-foot cut will be made in the hillside in the Ridgedale Addition area for the Thruway, and that the road will have a six per cent grade.

Although no definite decision was made, Pritchett said the request would be given consideration since the grade did not eliminate the construction of a ramp. It was pointed out that the steepest grade on any city street is 17 per cent, and that such a ramp would have a grade far less steep.

Pritchett also explained that plans call for the Thruway to have an interchange with U.S. Route 220, the McMullen Highway, in the area in question.

Utility Work Discussed

With that in mind, the SRC chief engineer said vehicles could leave the Thruway at the Route 220 interchange, travel to Dingle Circle and Gephart Drive and thence to the armory site.

Also up for discussion were details of the relocation of sewer and water lines for the western end of the Thruway, as well as such lines which will be laid to the new armory. The cost of such work is a city obligation.

City spokesmen this morning said only preliminary estimates have been prepared for the cost of relocating utilities resulting from the various phases of the Thruway.

In connection with this, it was pointed out that a legal ruling is being sought on whether the city or state will pay for the cost of moving some power lines for the Industrial Boulevard in South Cumberland.

Local Boy Injured In Fall At Home

Frederick Mahaney, seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Mahaney, 111 Race Street, was admitted to Memorial Hospital yesterday after cutting his left hand.

Attaches said the boy fell on a glass jar and was scheduled for surgery today. He is reported in "good" condition.

Soil Group To Meet

The Allegany County Soil Conservation District Supervisors will meet tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. at the office of Joseph M. Steger, county farm agent, according to Floyd Buser, chairman.

County's Poll Workers Will Diagnose Primary

Neat said each poll worker will be notified by letter of the time and place they are to meet for the "refresher" course in conducting an election.

The first meeting will be August 1 at 7 p. m. at the Election Board office in the Court House basement. A similar meeting is set for August 4 at 7 p. m. at the board office.

On August 5 a meeting will be held at the Town Hall in Westernport at 7 p. m. for poll workers in that area. Frostburg area poll workers will meet August 6 at the Town Hall at 7 p. m. and the final session will be August 7 at 7 p. m. at the Town Hall in Lonaconing.

There are 68 poll workers who will attend these sessions, Neat said.

SRC Briefs City On Plans For Thruway

60-Foot Deep Cut Will Be Made In Ridgedale Addition

City and State Roads Commission representatives conferred yesterday in Baltimore on the possibility of the construction of a ramp leading from the west approach of the Cumberland Thruway to the new National Guard Armory to be built in Ridgedale Addition.

Attending the conference were Mayor J. Edwin Keach, City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum, City Attorney William R. Carscaden and Simon K. Carroll, the city's water distribution and maintenance superintendent.

Joint School District Vote Will Be Held

SOMERSET, Pa. (UPI) — The Somerset County Board of Education has supported a move to place on the November ballot the issue of whether to make the Rockwood School Jointure a union school district.

The board voted Wednesday to ask the State Council on Education to approve the referendum proposal. Communities to vote on the proposal would be Rockwood, Casselman, New Centerville, Black Twp., Milford Twp., Midtown, and Upper Turkeyfoot Twp.

In a jointure, each community has a separate board of education. A union district would involve only one board.

If the issue is placed on the ballot, a merger of the school district would take place if a majority of voters in each of five of the seven district support the measure.

False Answer To Cost Some Auto Owners

Some auto owners in Maryland have erroneously answered the insurance question on their tag application forms, and some may be prosecuted.

This was revealed today in a statement released by James B. Monroe, commissioner of motor vehicles.

He called attention to this fact after a comparison of accident reports submitted to the Financial Responsibility Division with registration records of the Motor Vehicle Department.

The Unsatisfied Claim and Judgement Fund Law provides, in substance, that every person who registered an uninsured motor vehicle in this state for the yearly period commencing April 1, or May 1, as the case may be, shall pay an additional fee, at the time of registration, of $8 and that every person who registered an insured motor vehicle for this same period pay an additional fee of $1.

The law further provides that any person and any agent or servant of such person who operates an uninsured motor vehicle, without having paid the fee prescribed shall be subject to a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $500 or imprisonment for not more than 30 days, at the discretion of the court.

The commissioner of motor vehicles announced his intention of referring to Dan M. Vann, manager of the Unsatisfied Claim and Judgement Fund Board, files on which it appeared that improper fees had been paid at the time of registration.

Vann will study the files submitted to him and refer them to the prosecuting authorities where such procedure is indicated.

Utility Worker Killed During Storm

EASTON, Md. (AP) — Linden W. Brittingham, 54, Queenstown manager for the Eastern Shore Public Service Company, died yesterday of a fractured skull suffered while working to repair storm damage at an historic Maryland estate.

A severe wind and rain storm which swept the Queenstown area Tuesday night damaged two historic estates, My Lord's Gift and Bowlingly. Brittingham was working at Bowlingly.

He was in a tree trying to restore electric service when he was hit in the forehead by a tree limb. He managed to get to the ground and drive to a doctor's office. He was treated and sent to Easton Memorial Hospital for further examination. He died at the hospital early yesterday.

The two estates are among those visited on the annual Maryland house and garden tours.

At My Lord's Gift two implement sheds were damaged, the slate roof was torn off another building and about 15 trees were uprooted. About a dozen trees were knocked down at Bowlingly.

Medically speaking, anyone who is 20 per cent or more below his ideal weight is underweight.

Our American Heritage: Sundae's Creation Is In Dispute

CALORIE COUNTER'S DOWNFALL—The banana split, as American as the hot dog and the nemesis of many a well-intentioned dieter, is the supreme sundae creation. A new version of this old ice cream dessert adds toffee sauce.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Call the sundae school roll and four states raise their hands. All four claim to have a birth stake in that typically American ice cream dessert.

Wisconsin and Illinois speaking up. They insist the first sundae was created by native soda fountain vendors who served the concoctions to their customers.

Pennsylvania, looking lofty, announces she has always been famous for her ice cream and her ice-cream parlors.

Ithaca, N. Y., counters with its own story. According to legend, sundaes began in that town when blue laws made ice-cream sodas the only beverages, apart from tea and coffee, available on Sunday. One high-liver, tired of this Sunday drugstore sipping, asked for the ice cream and syrup "straight." The Sunday Special was born. Later—probably when multitudinous versions of the dessert began to appear—the name was shortened to sundae.

Just to prevent any freezing up of state relations, listen to what a writer in an ice-cream trade journal had to say way back in the 1900's when a sundae was sold for 10 cents:

"The sundae is not a new invention. This method of serving is older than the name, and like many other good things, had its origin in France, where unflavored ice cream was served with a compote of fruit. It is impossible to tell just who first used it at the soda fountain. What is now almost universally known as the sundae, in different sections is variously called college ice, throwover, lollypop and even frappe.

"The name 'throwover' comes nearer to being descriptive than any of the other names for the thing itself is nothing more or less than a portion of ice cream over which a small quantity of syrup or crushed fruit has been thrown or poured."

The Banana Split is the supreme sundae creation. A gentleman who's been in the soda-fountain business for at least 40 years, tells us the dessert originally consisted of banana, vanilla and strawberry ice cream, crushed strawberry and pineapple syrup, whipped cream, walnuts and cherries.

Want to try the latest version of this grand and glorious American conglomeration? Then peel a ripe banana and split in half lengthwise; place halves cut side up, on a plate or in a banana-split dish. Line up one scoop each of chocolate, vanilla and strawberry ice cream over banana. Pour on Toffee Sauce; garnish with nuts and cherries.

Toffee Sauce
Ingredients: ½ cup old-fashioned molasses, 1 cup firmly-packed dark brown sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup water, 1 tablespoon cider or white vinegar, 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, ½ teaspoon vanilla, ½

cup undiluted evaporated milk.

Method: In a 2½-quart saucepan, mix together the molasses, sugar, salt, water and vinegar.

Cook over moderate heat, without stirring, for 10 minutes or until candy thermometer registers 232 degrees or when a small amount dropped in very cold water forms a soft ball. Remove from heat; stir in butter and va-

nila. Cool; stir in evaporated milk. Makes 1 cup.

Nut Loaf Goes With Zesty Porch Snack

Cucumber sandwiches, date nut loaf with cream cheese and iced tea make an extremely palatable porch snack.

Date Nut Loaf

Ingredients — 2 cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon double-acting baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup firmly packed dark brown sugar, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 3 tablespoons coarsely grated orange rind, ½ cup boiling water, ½ cup of orange juice, 1 egg, 1 package (about 6 ounces) pitted dates (finely cut), ½ cup broken walnut meats.

Method — Sift together the flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt. Stir in the brown sugar. Force brown sugar through a fine strainer if lumpy. Stir butter, orange rind and boiling water together in mixing bowl until butter melts; add orange juice.

With rotary beater (hand or electric) beat egg until thick.

Add dry ingredients and beat egg to other mixture; mix only until dry ingredients are moistened; fold in walnuts.

Turn into buttered loaf pan (about 9 by 5 by 2½ inches). Bake in moderate (350 degrees) oven 1 hour or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean.

Turn out on rack to cool. Loaf may be sliced a few hours after baking; but for very thin slices leave overnight in tightly covered container at room temperature.

Meat Is Top Item In U. S. Family's Food Budget

Meat ranks as the number one item in the American family's food budget, averaging 25 per cent of the money spent for food, the Department of Agriculture reports from findings in the household food consumption survey.

How much meat and what kinds of meat families use depends considerably on the money they have to spend, the survey shows. Higher income families eat more beef, veal and lamb than lower income families, but slightly less pork. Higher income families use more of the expensive cuts of beef, such as steaks and roasts.

Such meats as stewing beef and sausage are more popular among low income families. Ham, pork chops and bacon are used in about the same quantity by all income groups.

Spend More
Higher income families pay higher prices for all their meats — pork included — than lower income families. Families with more money to spend use it to get the kind and quality of meat they want rather than to buy more meat. For example, higher income families in the survey reported paying higher prices for pork though they bought fewer pounds than lower income families.

Farm families in most parts of the country eat about as much meat as city families, but they spend less money for it because they have home-produced supplies. About half the meat on farm home meal tables is home-produced.

The chief reason farm families have been eating more meat in recent years is that home freezers and freezer lockers have made it possible for them to preserve meat so successfully. Freezers also are responsible for the noticeable shift from pork to beef in farm family fare.

Until farm families had freezers they relied mostly on pork, which they could keep by curing. Freezing proved an easy and satisfactory way to preserve home-grown beef.

Beef, Pork Tops
For all families surveyed, beef and pork average 79 per cent of the meat eaten. Veal, lamb, the variety meats such as liver and heart, frankfurters and other luncheon meats made up the remaining 21 per cent.

Half of all meat eaten is fresh or frozen cuts. The other half is in processed form — hamburger, sausage, frankfurters, or canned meat, for example.

Families in the West eat the most meat, slightly more than those in the North Central States. Families in the Northeast eat a little less beef than the West, a little less pork than the North Central.

And families in the South, especially farm families, eat less meat than other regions, particularly less beef.

Graham Cracker Ice Cream

Ice cream is the favorite summertime dessert of Americans. Here is an unusually good ice cream that both young and old appreciate — Graham Cracker Ice Cream. One cup of graham crackers is the main ingredient of this tasty uncooked dessert.

Make a hit with your family by serving it tonight. To serve from 6 to 8.

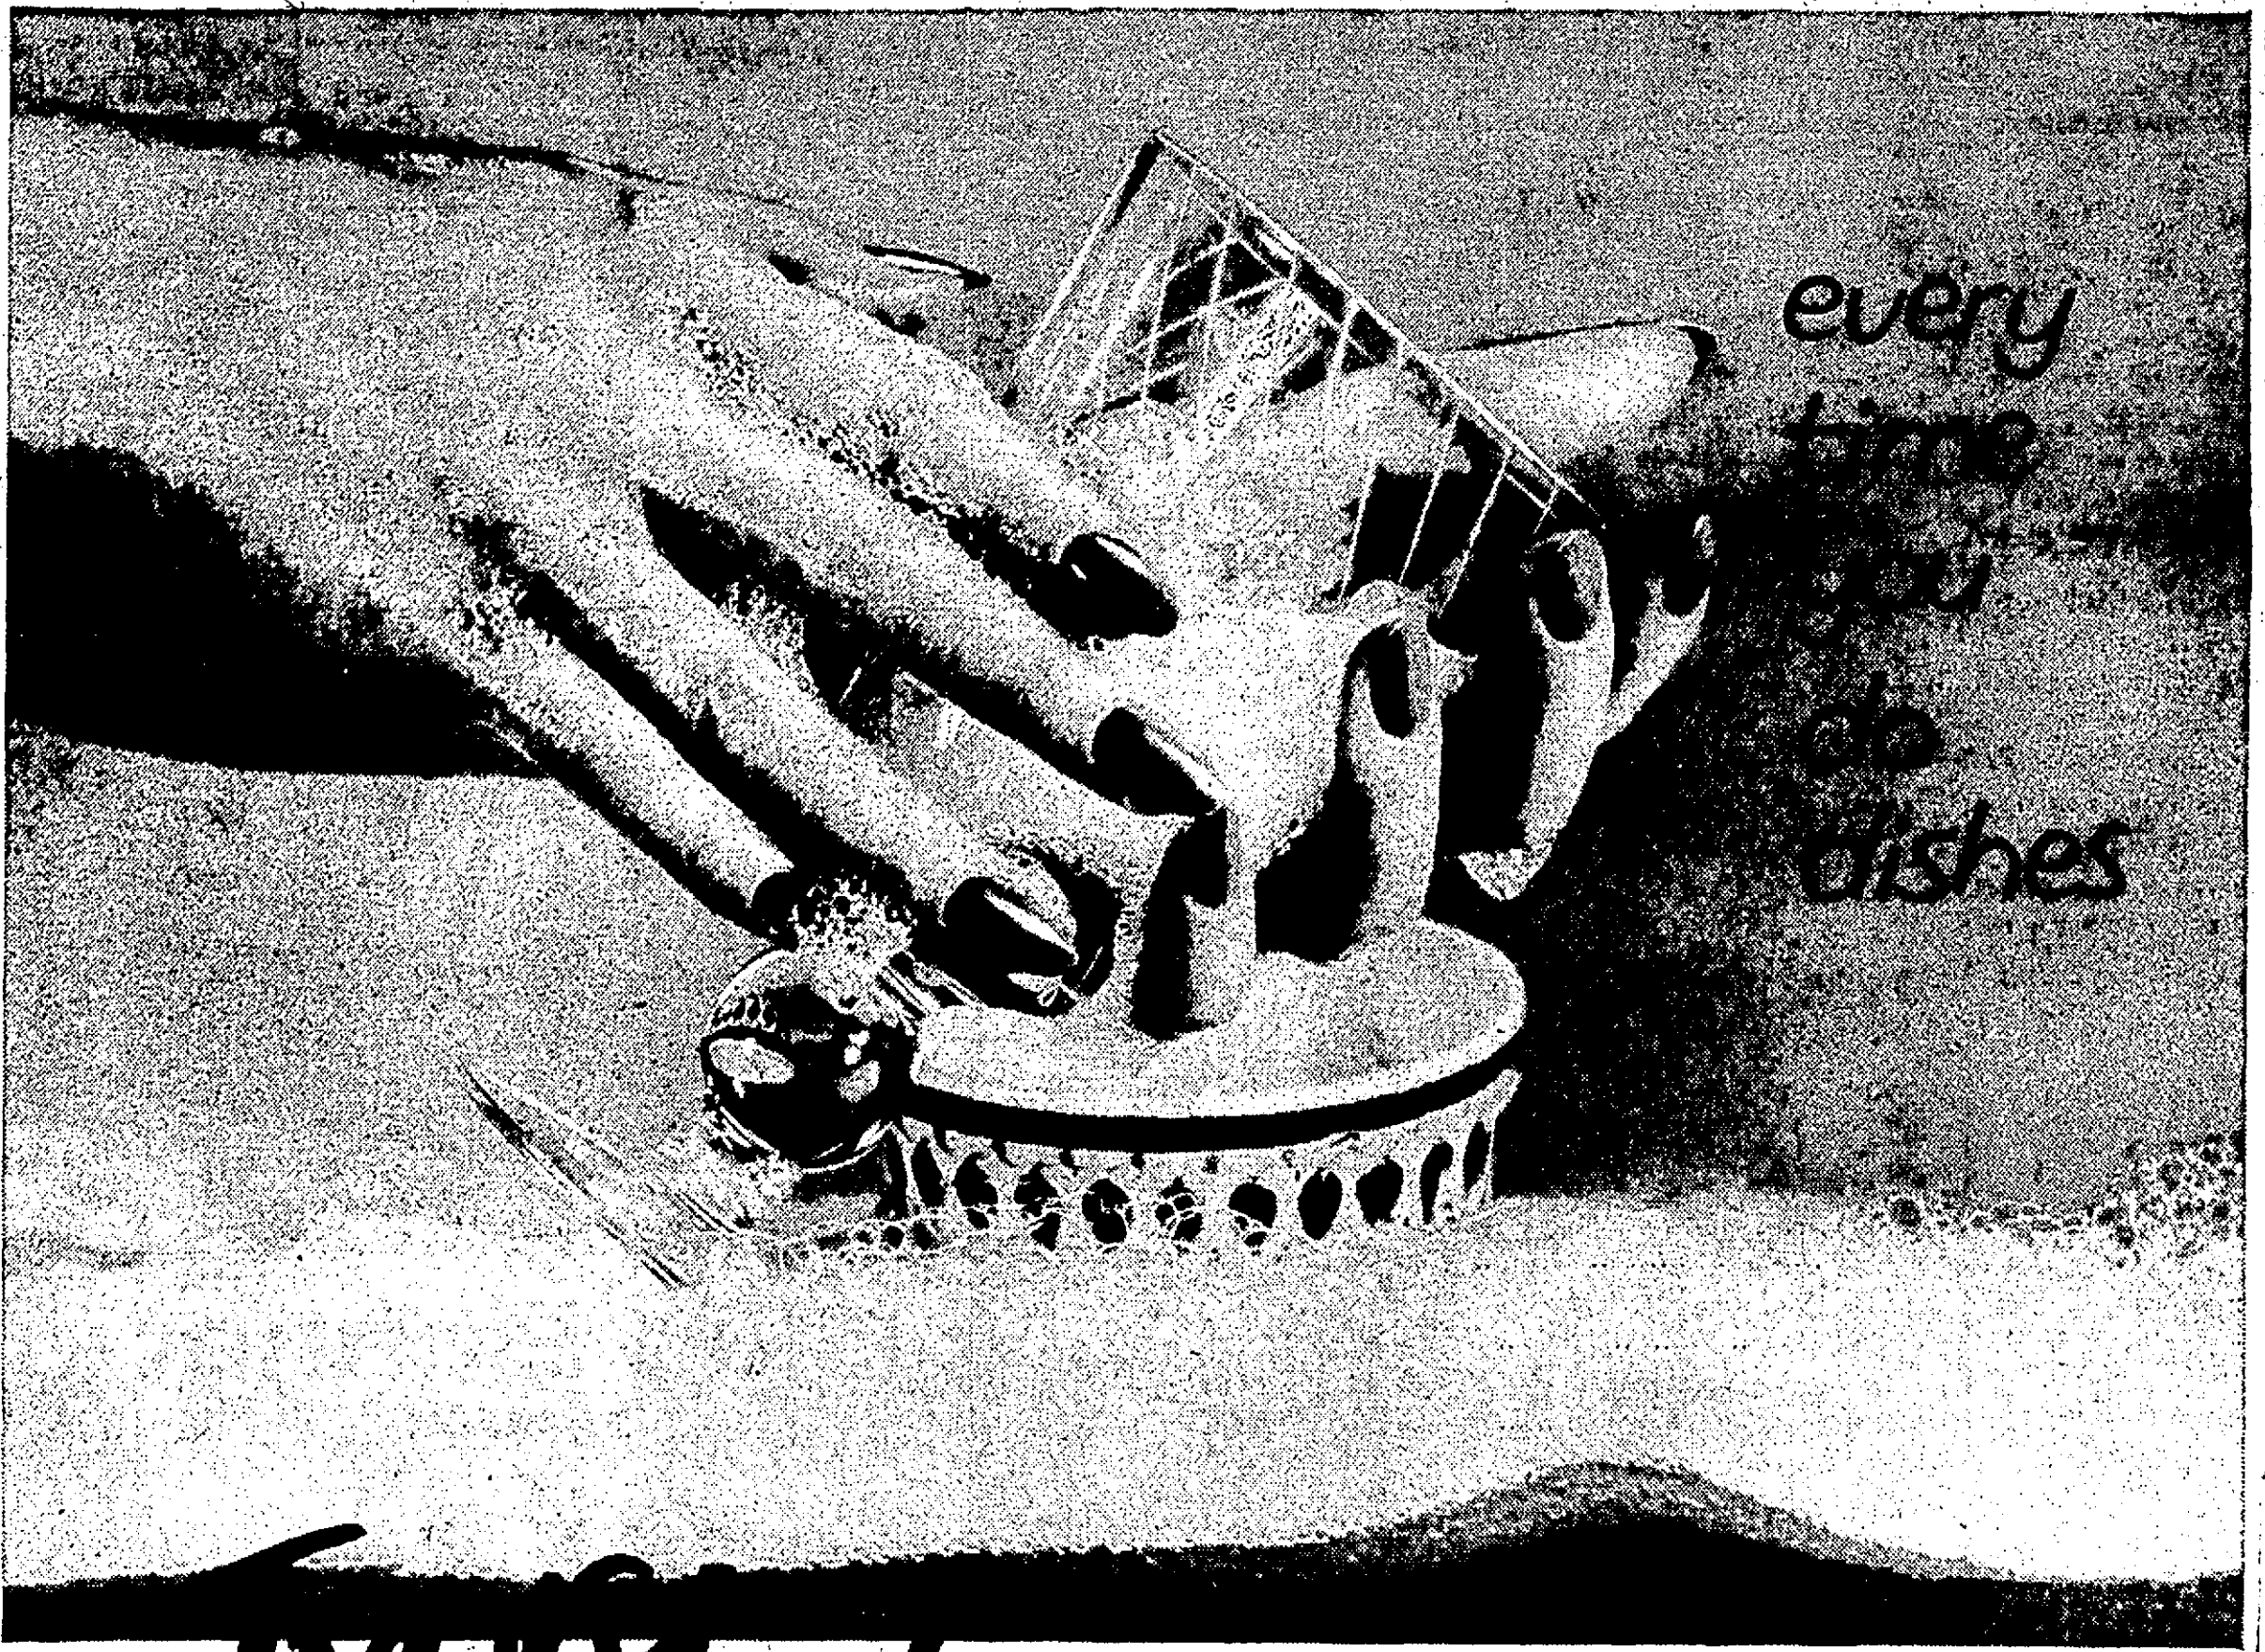

Combine 1 cup of graham cracker crumbs — approximately 13 of these crackers will make 1 cup of crumbs (the best consistency of ice cream is obtained by rolling the crumbs very fine), ¼ cup granulated sugar — heaping, and 1 pint of coffee cream (20 per cent), add 1 teaspoon vanilla and pour into your refrigerator tray and freeze. Stir once during freezing in the tray as otherwise crumbs are apt to float to the top of the mixture.

Fruit Threaded On Skewers

Add gay fruit kabobs to a luncheon sandwich plate. Thread cubes of avocado, fresh or canned pineapple and chunks of banana on skewers. Brush with fresh lime-honey dressing and sprinkle with finely chopped walnuts.

Serve A Banquet Of Bits And Bites

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

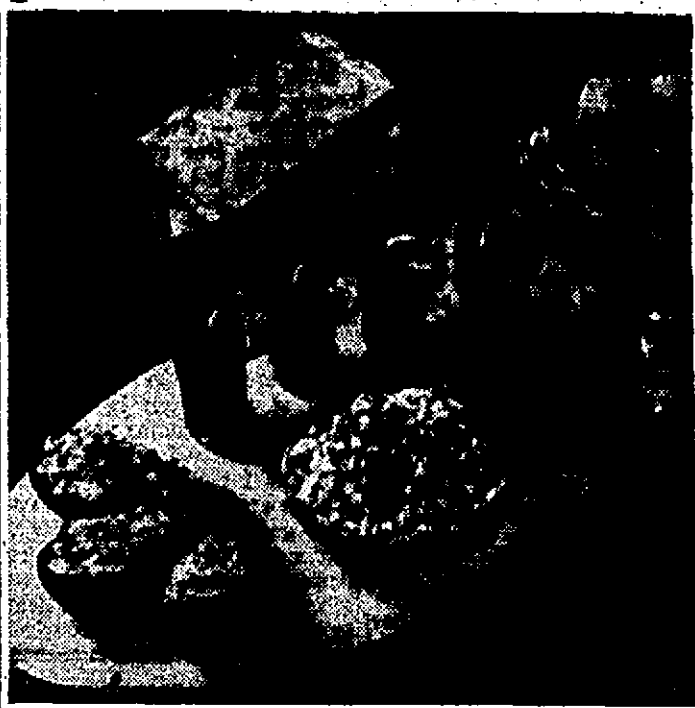

Two suburban housewives have the answer to the problem of entertaining in busy households. Their formula? Use snack cookery in many social situations in interesting ways.

This enterprising team, Alice Schryver and Francille Wallace, found other women wanted to know about their have-guests-and-enjoy-them-too regime. Their recently published "The Complete Hors d'Oeuvres Cookbook" (Coward-McCann, $3.95) gives the results of their experience.

Talking to the authors over lunch, we discovered that Alice's family considers snack cookery an adventure that offers loads of fun. Two pre-teen daughters can't wait to get in the act and, using their mother's recipes, make and serve spreads and dips. Even their father has been beguiled by this easy cookery and has been known to produce speedy Chinese-type snacks with the mere help of a skillet.

Fran says her husband is a meat-and-potatoes man. But even he enjoys main-dish party snacks such as corned beef turnovers made from rich pastry, miniature meat balls, skewered seafood, rolled in bacon, meat kabobs, grilled open sandwiches of baked beans, bites of roast beef and cheese, barbecued spareribs and other stick-to-the-rib dishes.

Both authors urge hostesses to take advantage of the fact that modern entertaining has shifted from the formal to the casual.

ENTERTAINING MADE EASY—With company in the house, snack suppers can be as successful as sit-down dinners and give the hostess more time to enjoy the visitors. Featured on this snack tray is avocado Jamboree.

"Snack suppers can be every bit as successful as sit-down dinners," they emphasize. If you have a freezer—and the authors have designated any of the 1,000 recipes in their book that may be frozen—parties that feature hors d'oeuvres can be largely do-it-ahead affairs.

Do you ever have, spur-of-the-moment company, Sunday afternoon drop-ins, once-a-week groups, luncheons and tea parties, cocktail parties and stay-after guests? Alice and Francille have recipes and menus to offer.

One of their most interesting menu ideas is what they call the American Smorgasbord. For it the buffet table need have only napkins, plates and forks plus a variety of hot and cold hors d'oeuvres. In the same way that the Chinese add a different dish to their banquet menu for each additional pair of guests, the larger the party the more numerous should be the dishes served. Guests come to the table as they please, enjoy choosing hot hors d'oeuvres from chafing dishes or electric skillets, bites and bits from a cold array.

"There's just one formality you need observe," Francille advises. "Act like a hostess and let people know you're there!"

Here is our adaptation of a popular spread from "The Complete Hors d'Oeuvres Cookbook."

Jamboree
Ingredients: 1 medium-sized avocado, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 1 tablespoon drained capers, 4 slices crisply fried bacon (drained and coarsely crumbled), salt.
Method: Cut avocado in half and remove seed and skin; with a fork mash avocado fine. Stir in lemon juice and capers, then bacon and a dash of salt. Makes about 1 cup. Good as a dip with potato chips.

No long metal skewers on hand for outdoor cooking? Use green sticks of sweet wood, each about four feet long. Peel the sticks and sharpen them at one end.

Vegetable Week Offers Wide Variety Of Items

The following guide to the nation's best food buys for this week-end was prepared in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Agriculture and Interior.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Food shoppers will find a wide variety of their favorite items to choose from during this national vegetable week. Among the leading plentiful will be lettuce, potatoes, onions, corn, cucumbers, squash, celery, and tomatoes, many from nearby market garden areas.

Fruit bins will hold an abundance of choices, too, with watermelons, cantaloupes, and peaches heading the list. Lemons will be plentiful, while many markets will feature blueberries, cherries, and grapes.

Among the top meat buys will be those long-time favorites—broilers, fryers, and turkeys, along with chuck roasts and smoked hams for out-of-doors eating.

Most dairy products continue abundant, and some markets will have favorable price tags on small-pullet eggs.

Best fish buys include shrimp, fish sticks, and canned tuna. That's the food shopping situation for this week-end, from a national standpoint. Here's a more detailed look at food counters:

Shoppers will find a wide assortment of meats and poultry this week-end. A good item will be young chickens, joined by light turkeys and ducks. A co-feature in the markets may be fresh pork chops, chops, loins, and fresh hams. In beef, look for the chuck steaks and boneless roasts and round roasts. Legs of lamb are in good supply in the area, and for the picnic, most stores will have a wide assortment of cold cuts.

Better than average milk production keeps dairy products a good buy, high in protein and easy to prepare. Eggs continue good. There may be bargains in the small-pullet sizes.

Most vegetables are in heavy supply at attractive prices. Most offerings come from nearby farms. For best buys, look to cabbage, all beans, sweet corn, cucumbers, onions, new southern potatoes, and all of the squash varieties. Both western and local celery should be best buys this weekend, as are the major green vegetables. The main salad items, lettuce, tomatoes, and peppers, will be fairly good, as is cauliflower. Looking for a good piece of fruit? Start with watermelons, as they continue very favorable. Blueberries, cantaloupes, and peaches follow as good values. California is now sending along good supplies of oranges and lemons. Green apples are a good bet for fresh apple pie.

Best fish buys include fillets of cod, flounder, haddock, and ocean perch. Also salmon, whiting, scallops, crabmeat, lobster, and clams.

Blueberry Roll
Prepare a recipe of baking powder biscuit dough; roll 1/4 inch thick. Sprinkle 1 pint washed, and drained blueberries on dough, and sprinkle with 1/4 cup sugar and 1/4 tablespoons lemon juice. Roll as for jelly roll; place seam down, on greased baking sheet. Brush with butter and bake in hot oven (400 degrees Fahrenheit) for 25 to 30 minutes. Serve with lemon sauce.

Powdered Cumin
You may wish to add powdered cumin to a curry dish or chili con carne. Curry powder always includes some cumin.

Avocado Marlow Unusual Dessert

Now that summer avocados are plentiful, try them in this dessert.

"Avocado Marlow" combines velvety sieved avocado with lime juice, marshmallows, milk and cream. Serve this creamy dessert in well chilled sherbet glasses.

In selecting summer avocados, remember you'll find them in many shapes and sizes. But all varieties provide you with the pale-green fruit that means good eating.

Avocado Marlow
16 marshmallows (1 4-ounce package)
1 cup milk
1/2 cup sieved avocado
1 cup light cream
Few grains salt
1 tablespoon fresh lime or lemon juice
1/4 teaspoon grated lime or lemon rind

Cut marshmallows into pieces, add milk and heat slowly, stirring until marshmallows are melted. Cool. To prepare avocado, cut into halves, remove seeds and skin, and force through a sieve. Blend avocado, cream, salt, lime juice and rind into cooled marshmallow mixture. Turn into refrigerator tray and place in freezer compartment with control set at lowest temperature. Freeze until firm, stirring occasionally with a fork. Reset temperature control to normal. Makes about 1 quart.

Barbecue Sauce

Ingredients—1/2 cup honey, 1/2 cup soy sauce, 1/2 cup catsup, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 1 teaspoon paprika, 1/2 teaspoon tabasco, 1 clove garlic (crushed), 1 cup orange juice, 1 cup wine vinegar.

Method—Stir all the ingredients together.

Foods which are easiest to carry along on a picnic are apt to be a bit on the dry side, so here's a nice surprise and change of pace for dessert, whether it's at a picnic or beside the outdoor barbecue—"Hot Peach Shortcakes."

But if you're a whipped cream fan, take along a container of the ready-whipped kind in a bucket of ice, and give each shortcake a squirt when it's assembled.

If you can find some inexpensive chop sticks you can use them for impaling morsels of food to be grilled over charcoal. Soak the sticks well in water before using to prevent their burning.

How To Cut Dates

Use a kitchen scissors when you are cutting dates into small pieces to add to cookies and wet the blades of the scissors. This way the fruit won't stick together.

Spoonful Is Levelled

Note to brides: When you want to measure one tablespoon of a dry ingredient, dip the measuring spoon into the food and then level off with a spatula or case knife.

Cooked In Milk

Chopped green cabbage is delicious when cooked in milk until tender crisp (about five minutes); add butter and seasoning and service with the milk (thickened, if desired).

Luncheon Meat Served Novel Way

Try this novel way of serving luncheon meat.
Top thin slice of meat with slice of cheese. Spread with prepared mustard and chopped ripe olives.
Then roll up and fasten with pick and put under broiler briefly to heat and melt cheese.
Good with potato salad.

Potato Chips Hors D'oeuvres

Here's an unusual appetizer.
Make tiny balls 1/4 inch in diameter of cream cheese seasoned with chives, or of shrimp paste, or of ground cooked chicken slightly moistened with mayonnaise. Roll them in finely crushed potato chips, and impale them on colored toothpicks.

Salad Simulates Colorful Clock

Here's a pretty trick with canned cling peaches and cottage cheese.
Divide a pint of cottage cheese into mounds on each of 4 salad plates. Drain 2 cups canned cling peaches and arrange around cheese. Set 2 strips of green pepper on cheese to represent hands of a clock. Place pieces of maraschino cherries at hour position.

Italian Appetizer Deserves Fame

sion to make. On several occasions we have substituted watermelon for the cantaloupe. When we told some epicurean friends about this departure from the classic, they almost ran us out of town. So don't use watermelon in this appetizer unless the idea really appeals to you.
Another departure from tradition, but one that will appeal to you if prosciutto is not available in your community, is to substitute paper-thin slices of Smithfield-type ham.

Melone Con Prosciutto

Ingredients: Cantaloupe, paper-thin slices of prosciutto.
Method: Cut cantaloupe in half; remove seeds; cut in lengthwise wedges. Remove rind. Place a couple of wedges on each salad-size serving plate; drape prosciutto over the wedges, overlapping the ham as you do so. Or roll each slice of prosciutto and arrange on or beside melon.

Cook Book Corner

Just off the press is "The All-American Italian Cookbook" by Wilma Reiva LaSasso (Macmillan). This is an excellent collection of recipes, home tested and clearly written. From her Italian-born mother as well as from people from various parts of Italy who had immigrated to the United States, the author collected directions for the delightful dishes that make up Italian meals. These include the first course (antipasto); light and heavy soups (minestrone and minestrone); a rice dish (risotto); cooked noodle-type doughs with sauces (pasta asciutta). Main course dishes feature meat, fish, poultry and game. For main-dish accompaniments there are vegetables, including potatoes. Salad recipes are here, too, as are desserts.

Cocoa, Chocolate Source

Cocoa and chocolate both come from a tropical tree called the cacao. Cocoa beans, about the size of almonds, grow in hard-shelled pods. Chocolate contains more fat or "cocoa butter" than does the cocoa powder, although both are made from the beans.
Mold cooked hot cornmeal in a loaf pan and chill. Slice and reheat with melted butter and grated Italian-type cheese. Serve with broiled chicken.

Frosty Lime Fizz For Summer Days

A "Frosty Lime Fizz" both looks cool and tastes cool on a sizzling day.
Combine 1/2 to 1 cup sugar, 1 cup lime juice, and 1 cup water; stir to dissolve sugar. Spoon 1 quart lime sherbet into six 10-ounce glasses. Add 1/4 cup of the lime-juice mixture to each, then fill with about 2 cups chilled carbonated water.

MISS CHIN — Kenny Lane, of Muskegon, Mich., gives his all last night with a right that just missed the chin of lightweight champion Joe Brown, left, in third-round action at Houston, Tex. Brown copped the decision, retaining his crown. (AP Photofax)

Lane To Get Rematch

Thundering Finish Saves Boxing Crown For Brown

By JACK CUDDY
United Press International

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI)—Lightweight champion Joe Brown said today he will grant a return bout "as soon as possible" to southpaw Kenny Lane, who menaced his crown Wednesday night before a sellout crowd that paid a record Texas fight gate.

Brown's thundering finish in the 15th round probably saved his 135-pound title on the unanimous decision that snapped Lane's winning string at 19 straight and extended Joe's unbeaten streak to 18, including a draw.

Because of the terrific fight, the new record Texas gate of $69,203 and a record paid crowd of 10,994, Rex Braun, president of Texas Boxing Enterprises, Inc., announced, "We'll stage a return title fight in late September at the Coliseum, if the managers are willing."

Claim Lane Won
Lane, of Muskegon, Mich., and co-managers Jack Kearns and Pete Petrosky declared in unison that Kenny had won Wednesday night's thrilling contest at the Coliseum, but hadn't got the verdict. They demanded a return as quickly as possible.

However, Lou Viscusi, manager of Brown, was not as eager for a return till as the champion was.

He said, "I don't know what we'll do next. We'll have to talk things over for a couple of days."

Brown, 32, of New Orleans, received the largest purse of his career — approximately $42,400 — for his magnificent defense against the underrated challenger who had gone into the ring a 13-5 underdog.

Lane, 26-year-old ex-farm boy, will get half as much as Brown or about $21,200 for his 20 percent of the net gate and $45,000 TV money.

Each weighed 134½ pounds.

Lane staggered in 15th.

Brown wrapped up a successful fifth defense of the 135-pound title in the 15th round when he twice staggered Lane with right uppercuts and left hooks and knocked out his mouthpiece for the second time in the bout.

The champion received the unanimous decisions on a 10-point-must basis as follows:

Referee Ernie Taylor, 143-142; Judge Jimmy Webb, 145-141; and Judge Bill Cornelius, 144-143.

The decision was greeted by a roar of mingled cheers and boos, reflecting divided opinion among the fans.

United Press International had the bout even, with 143 points for each fighter. A pool of 17 writers at the ringside showed 13 favoring Brown, three for Lane and one even.

There were no knockdowns, although each was well shaken many times.

Baltimore's Rain-Soaked Course Gets Early Test

By LOU PANOS
BALTIMORE (AP) — Rain-toughened Mount Pleasant gets an early test in the opening round of the $20,000 Eastern Open today with some of golf's brightest stars among the first players scheduled to tee off.

The early birdie-seekers included Dow Finsterwald, newly-crowned champion of the Professional Golfers Assn., former National Open King Dick Mayer, and long-hitting George Bayer.

Start At 8:15
In the card-shuffling for starting times, they drew 8:15 a. m. (EDT) as the first big-name performers to head over the rugged hills of the old Mount.

Moments later they were followed by veteran Sam Snead, bearing his usual tag as "the man to beat"; Jack Burke, regarded as once again approaching the peak of a game which brought him the 1956 Masters and PGA titles, and Billy Maxwell, the former National Amateur champion who has worked his way up to 12th on this year's pro money list.

Late starters include reigning National Open champion Tommy Bolt, former Masters winner Doug Ford, former Masters and two-time National Open titlist Cary Middlecott and Ken Venturi, winner of three tournaments on the 1958 trail.

Biggest Field Ever
Nineteen of the sport's top cash winners this year were in the field of 129 tournament-hardened pros gunning for the $2,800 first place pot. Also competing were 34 amateurs, making the 162-man field the biggest ever drawn since the Eastern Open was launched eight years ago.

This contingent, which is 22 more than the record field of several previous years, will be cut to the 60 lowest scoring pros and 10 amateurs, plus ties, halfway through the 72-hole tournament.

Another downpour yesterday and additional thundershowers forecast for this afternoon promised to keep Mount Pleasant, considered by many in the field as the nation's toughest public course, from drying out before the tourney winds up Sunday. Temperatures near 90 were predicted for this afternoon.

Layout Looks Ready
The 6,885-yard, par 72 layout, already soaked by rainfall totaling more than eight inches since July 1, looked ready to test some of golf's greatest shotmakers.

The wide, sharply sloping fairways surrendered a minimum of extra distance on the bounces and rolls of tee shots. In some low-lying spots, squishy footing hampered players in the execution of long approaches.

Two of the holes which traditionally provide a bundle of trouble, the 15th and 17th, looked especially tough in practice rounds. On the 15th, a par 4 stretching 447 yards, all but the longest hitters required woods to reach the green on their second shots. On No. 17, a par 3, the cabbage-like rough to the right of the raised, bottle-shaped green was transformed into a swamp.

Twilight Lead OnLine Today
Four games are scheduled this evening in the Twilight Baseball League as Westernport, tied with Barton for the league lead, entertains third place Midland in the circuit's main attraction.

Westernport and Barton are knotted for the pacer's spot with 14-3 records and Midland is just one-half game away from the top on a mark of 13-3.

Other action finds Barton coming to Cumberland for a game with the Greys at Taylor Field, Finzel hosting Lonaconing, and Wright's Crossing journeying to Zihlman.

Pair Stove Games Scheduled Today
The Lions Club can reduce some of the Hot Stove League lead enjoyed by the Kiwanis Club this evening when it tangles with the Elks in an 8 p. m. contest at Penn Avenue Field.

Another match billed for today has Bedford Road's Optimists (6-5) testing B'nai B'rith (1-11) at 3:30 p. m. on the Fort Hill diamond.

The Lions are in second place with a record of 9-4, having one more loss than Kiwanis. Bedford Road holds down fourth place, the Elks are tied for fifth by benefit of a 6-6 showing and B'nai B'rith is in the basement on a 1-11 tangle.

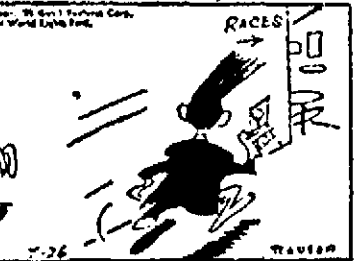

Both contests scheduled for yesterday were rained out.

Colts' Advance Players Will Report Today

WESTMINSTER, Md. (AP) — Overcoats and autumn leaves are still a couple of months off, but football already is back on the scene.

A group of 25 newcomers, vanguard of the complete Baltimore Colts' squad, is expected to report to Coach Weeb Ewbank at the Western Maryland College training camp today.

The veteran players, plus tackle Ray Krouse who was obtained recently in a trade with the Detroit Lions, are due to report Saturday. Actual training sessions will begin Monday.

Among the early arrivals will be Dick Yelvington and Leo Sanford, two more seasoned pros obtained in trades with the New York Giants and the Chicago Cardinals. Eleven others were drafted by the Colts last winter and the rest are either free agents or draft choices from previous years.

Four high draft choices won't join the Colts until after the annual All-Star game in Chicago next month. They include Leonard Lyles (No. 1 choice), Joe Niecey (3), Ray Brown (5) and Johnny Sample (7).

Jay Accepted By Mates Now
MILWAUKEE (AP) — Five years ago when the Milwaukee Braves signed Joe Jay for a $40,000 bonus few of his teammates would talk to him and his pitching seldom gave them anything to talk about.

But now the 22-year-old right-hander is the top topic of conversation among friends and foe alike.

Jay pitched the world champions back into first place Wednesday night with a two hit 6-0 shutout over St. Louis.

It was Jay's sixth victory since becoming a starter June 13, his fifth in a row and his third shutout. His earned run average for nine starting assignments (he has lost three) is 1.25.

Jay, no longer resented as $40,000 worth of excess baggage, said he began to think about a no-hitter in the fifth inning. That was the same frame in which Gene Freese ruined his bid for a perfect game with a sizzler off third baseman Eddie Mathews' glove. Don Blasingame got the other hit, a scratch single in the ninth.

Five Games Set In Little League
Action aplenty will be provided in the Dapper Dan Little League today as five games appear on the slate.

In 3:30 p. m. contests the Indians and Braves will clash at East Side Field and the Giants and Phillies will battle on Post Field.

The Red Sox will test the Pirates at Penn Avenue, the Yankees face the Cardinals at Post Field and the Athletics and Dodgers go at it on the East Side diamond in 6 p. m. contests.

A pair of games were billed for yesterday, but rain forced postponement.

PHILS SIGN NIARHOS
PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Gus Niarhos, former New York Yankee catcher, was signed Wednesday by the Philadelphia Phillies. The Phillies made room for Niarhos by sending pitcher John Gray to Miami of the International League.

Stengel Safe Scribe Ponders Next Pilot To Walk Plank

By JACK HAND
NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Tighe, Bobby Bragan and Mayo Smith have walked the plank. Who's next?

The palace revolution in baseball already has matched the 1957 total. With two months to go, it may balloon to the size of the 1952 purge when front office bosses fired five major league managers during the season.

Spurt Doesn't Help Tigers
When Tighe was ousted June 10 and replaced by Bill Norman, his Detroit Tigers were running last 12½ games behind the New York Yankees. Despite a spurt under Norman and great success against the Yanks, the club was 17½ games back and sixth as it went into today's game with New York.

Bragan's successor at Cleveland, Joe Gordon, inherited a sixth-place team that was 12 games back of the Yanks. Going into today's action the Indians were seventh and 18½ games behind.

The Phillies had made a brilliant run under Smith just before the All-Star game and, there was pennant talk in the club house. This quickly faded during a tailspin on the road. When Sawyer took over the Phils were sixth, 9½ lengths behind the leader. Now they're only .001 behind the 4th place Cards 7½ back.

Smith's Firing Surprises
In a way it was surprising to see the Phillies fire Smith. The race is so tight that any of the eight clubs still could win it with a real hot spurt.

As for the American League, if managers are to be fired because of the "games behind" column, everybody except Casey Stengel had better start packing.

Siebern Now 'Big Leaguer'
DETROIT (AP) — Just a few weeks ago Casey Stengel called Norm Siebern "an almost big leaguer."

Now Siebern, the latest in a long line of slugging New York Yankee outfielders, has persuaded his manager to remove the "almost" part of the description.

Siebern is on an eight-game hitting streak in which he has collected 20 hits in his last 37 at-bats for a .541 batting average. In his last two games, against the Detroit Tigers, Siebern has hit safely six times in 10 at-bats, pounded out a pair of home runs and driven in five runs.

Currently hitting .321 with nine home runs, Siebern is helping Yankee fans forget about Mickey Mantle's off year.

Quast Meets 'Little Tiger' In Tourney

CHICAGO (AP)—"She's a little tiger."

That's how medalist Anne Quast described her quarter final opponent, Clifford Ann Creed of Opelousas, La., before they teed off today in the Women's Western Amateur golf tournament.

Match Seen Best
The match promised to be the best in the quarterfinal round as the 20-year-old Miss Quast, medalist and winner in 1956, tried to uphold Curtis Cup prestige.

She and Barbara McIntire of Jupiter, Fla., and Anne Richardson of Columbus, Ohio, were the only members of the Curtis Cup team remaining out of an original group of seven playing in the tourney.

Defeated in Wednesday's second round were Polly Riley of Fort Worth, 3 and 2 by Mrs. Paul Dye Jr. of Indianapolis, and Barbara Romack of Sacramento, Calif., by a whopping 7 and 5 by Miss McIntire.

Two Teenagers Left
Miss Creed, 19, a physical education student at Lamar Tech, Beaumont, Tex., is one of two teenagers left. The other is 17-year-old Sherry Wheeler of Glasgow, Ky., playing in the tournament for the first time.

Miss Creed advanced by trimming Mrs. Norma Shook of Niles, Ill., 7 and 6. Miss Wheeler was a 7 and 5 winner over Mrs. Frank Mayer of Glencoe, Ill.

Miss Quast, a senior history major at Stanford, downed Sandra Clifford of Mexico City 5 and 4. Others making the quarterfinals were Mrs. William Hartson, 32-year-old mother from Oakland, Calif.; and Betty Kerby, 28, of Akron, current Ohio champion.

Mrs. Hartson took on Miss Richardson, Miss Kerby faced Miss McIntire and Miss Wheeler met Mrs. Dye.

Cities Group To Study Tax

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—The executive committee of the American Municipal Assn. has voted to direct its staff to study proposals for taxing newspaper advertising.

The staff will make its recommendation in December when the committee meets in Boston.

The study will attempt to determine the impact on a community where such a municipal tax might be imposed.

It was pointed out that such a tax proposal in Baltimore was declared unconstitutional by a Maryland Circuit Court and the case is now before the Maryland Court of Appeals.

Mayor George Christopher of San Francisco, chairman of the 15-member AMA executive group, offered the resolution calling for the study. He told the committee adoption of a tax on advertising revenues would be injurious to the economy of a community.

Stan Freberg Has New Role As Conductor

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — The Omaha Symphony played a singing commercial the other night and guess who led the band?

Stan Freberg.

The same Stan Freberg who has made those silly, satirical records. He's making satirical, but legitimate, radio commercials now—and directing an occasional symphony orchestra.

Freberg has recently produced a series of commercials for the Butter-Nut Coffee people who headquarter here. In his long and knee-slapping commercials, Freberg features the city of Omaha.

It was only natural — well, almost natural — that Freberg would wind up leading the Omaha Symphony in a performance of his latest commercial, "The Omaha Suite," at a pops concert.

The symphony patrons are still talking about it.

Shenanigans On Show Fascinating To Critic

By FRED DANZIG
United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI) — The shenanigans on "Treasure Hunt" hold some sort of fascination for me. Like so many giveaway shows on TV, it has mastered the art of killing time so adroitly that the viewer believes the sound and fury signifies something.

Wednesday was a typical day on this Monday-through-Friday NBC-TV show, so I kept tabs on it. The half-hour was packed with seven one-minute commercials and a one-minute station break, leaving 22 minutes for action. About 5 minutes of this remainder involved action. All the rest went to small-talk, little jokes by emcee Dennis James, who is substituting for Jan Murray, suspense-building mumbo-jumbo about the 30 treasure chests containing $30,000 in prizes and some booby prizes.

It wasn't until 11 minutes went by that a woman contestant, held over from Tuesday's show, got to see what her treasure chest contained.

Channel Chaps: Gene Rayburn, emcee of "Dough Re Mi," on NBC-TV, forgot to show up on time for his program Wednesday. About 10 minutes after the show started with announcer Roger Tuttle pinch-hitting, Rayburn dashed on-stage unshaven, without a necktie, his shoes unlaced. He explained he overslept, thinking the program had been pre-empted by the U.N. agent. Jack Paar noted you can always tell when the nation is in a touch-and-go global crisis. "They begin putting more servicemen on the quiz shows," he said. He's right. Whether coincidence or design, the daytime shows have more servicemen contestants nowadays.

The Channel Swim: The National Association of Broadcasters says its ban against the portrayal of doctors, dentists and nurses by actors in TV commercials also includes props or sets that imply the speaker is part of the medical profession. Lou Costello will play the part of a misunderstood alcoholic in a fall "Wagon Train" episode on NBC. Danny Dayton, comedian-panelist on CBS-TV's "Keep Talking," will double as assistant producer of "Masquerade Party" when it returns on Aug. 4.

INDIAN QUEEN — Wearing the traditional costume of Tribal Queen of the Navajo Indians is Charlotte Barbara Anderson. Miss Anderson, a full-blooded member of the "Tachene" clan, will take part in all events, in the Miss Universe Pageant in Long Beach, Calif., although she will not be competing for any of the prizes.

Two Endings Shot For English Film

By BOB THOMAS
AP Motion Picture Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In the search to find film subjects that will attract customers to the theaters, the movie makers have come up with one on artificial insemination.

This is no sensation-packed quickie, but a top-flight production made in England and starring Julie London and Anthony Steel. Back home again, Julie filled me in on it.

"The title was 'A Question of Adultery,'" she explained, "but the Johnston office won't let us use that title in America. I understand the title here will be 'The Seventh Commandment.'"

The story, she related, was a composite of several cases that have actually happened in the British Isles. A husband and his pregnant wife are involved in an auto accident that causes her to lose the baby and him to become sterile. They have a test tube baby.

After the wife gives birth to the child, the marriage breaks up and the husband sues to have the child declared illegitimate. Two such cases have been tried in England and Scotland, Julie said. In one instance, the husband won, in the other he lost.

"We shot two endings to the picture," she added. "The one in which the birth is ruled to be adulterous will be used in Catholic countries, where artificial insemination is condemned. The other ending will be used in England and America."

Julie admitted she had some qualms about doing the picture. She recalled how her 9-year-old daughter picked up the script and asked what the word "adultery" meant. "It's a funny feeling to be making pictures your own children can't see," she sighed.

But the era when all films can be simon-pure for children's eyes has passed. Nowadays producers have to aim for more adult themes, and heaven only knows what they'll tackle next.

Today's U. S. jet fighter planes require 10 times as much electrical wiring as did the early models.

Questioning Is Brief

James pretended she had hit a booby prize, but it turned out she won $1,200 worth of goodies.

The show was 18 minutes old before James got around to asking the competing housewives—or homemakers, as he calls them—some questions. Nine questions and answers consumed 2 minutes. Sample question: "What animal is the symbol of the Democratic Party?"

A new champion was hailed after the quick question round and, although the show still had 10 minutes to go, James sadly advised her there was no time left to pick a treasure chest. She'll have to be back another day for that ceremony.

The last 10 minutes did have time for three commercials and a little girl who selected — after some more time-consuming chitchat with James — a card from a huge container. This gimmick is aimed at letting the home viewer win money or prizes. Unfortunately, the chosen card directed James to a chest that did not contain the $3,300 jackpot. The viewer, from Milwaukee, Wis., won a dinette set instead. And the little girl also won some prizes for her work.

And that's the show. Say what you will, though, it's handled so cleverly that you can't get sore at anyone on the show. How can you get sore at people who have given us a new art form?

Dear Abby - - -

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: When I was visiting in Arizona I met a truck driver from NEW ORLEANS. We had a wonderful time together. But I didn't get his name. He said to just call him "RED."

DEAR ABBY: I am 15 years old and am starting to get a mustache. My folks won't hear of letting me shave it off because they think I am too young to start shaving. It is very noticeable and the kids at school are beginning to make fun of me. Most of the guys I go with shave their whole faces. How old should a fellow be before he starts shaving?

DEAR ABBY: I am 15 years old and am starting to get a mustache. My folks won't hear of letting me shave it off because they think I am too young to start shaving. It is very noticeable and the kids at school are beginning to make fun of me. Most of the guys I go with shave their whole faces. How old should a fellow be before he starts shaving?

DEAR ABBY: How much does a son owe his parents? Ever since I was old enough to count change I carried papers. I worked my way through college by keeping three jobs. My father never worked steady but he drank steady. My mother used to ask me for money and spent it on clothes for my sisters who could have worked but were too lazy. Now that I am a success (I am not rich, but I do all right) my sisters, who are now married, keep writing to tell me how bad off the old folks are. Don't you think they should all pitch in the same amount, even if it means they have to sacrifice something? They all drive cars and have two TV sets and take vacations.

DEAR SON: A son (or daughter) should give not according to his MEANS—but according to his CONSCIENCE. Don't count their money—count your blessings. You will find the answer to your question in a very old book. I quote: "Honor thy mother and thy father."

DEAR ABBY: I am constantly arguing with my husband about his reading those filthy sex magazines. He says everyone reads them and he might learn something from them. Could you tell me what a man can learn from reading that filth? I am so embarrassed and afraid that someone will come over and see one of those magazines in our home that I jump everytime the doorbell rings. Am I too old-fashioned?

DEAR ABBY: My sister passed away last December and we had many talks before she died because she knew she was going. She told me she was leaving me her most precious possessions—her husband and three little children (all under 12). Thus far her husband has made no advances to me. I am 34 and unmarried. My sister was 42 and so is her husband. Should I tell her husband of our conversations? He has hired a housekeeper and shows only a sisterly interest in me.

DEAR SISTER: Don't tell your sister's husband about your conversation. Even though your sister might have wanted to "give you" her most precious possessions—it is still a man's privilege to select his own wife.

DEAR ABBY: I am 15 years old and am starting to get a mustache. My folks won't hear of letting me shave it off because they think I am too young to start shaving. It is very noticeable and the kids at school are beginning to make fun of me. Most of the guys I go with shave their whole faces. How old should a fellow be before he starts shaving?

Could you tell me what a man can learn from reading that filth? I am so embarrassed and afraid that someone will come over and see one of those magazines in our home that I jump everytime the doorbell rings. Am I too old-fashioned?

FREDERICK (AP)—A Philadelphia truck driver was killed yesterday when his loaded tractor-trailer smashed into a bridge and "folded up like an accordion."

State Police said John E. Ciakis apparently fell asleep while driving down a hill southwest of Frederick on U.S. 340.

Trooper C. M. Wolford said Ciakis was driving a new tractor-trailer, for the Crown Paperboard Co. Inc. of Philadelphia. He estimated damage to the vehicle at $16,000.

The truck overturned after hitting the bridge. It took several hours to clear away the wreckage.

Local National Guard To Undergo Training

The annual field training of Company C, First Battalion, 115th Infantry Regiment of the National Guard will be started August 16, according to Captain Eugene M. Light, commanding officer.

Captain Light said the local unit will undergo its training this year at Indiantown Gap Military Reservation in Pennsylvania, for a two-week period.

The local guard unit will join other units from other armories in Maryland and West Virginia, at the campsite near Harrisburg.

The local group will physically join the regiment for the first time since last year's field training was devoted to the advanced phases of infantry training.

The training next month will be the culmination of the Army teamwork lessons learned during the weekly sessions during the year.

The activities this year will include "pentomic" tactics under the new Army policy of the infantry's duties in combat in the event of an attack under nuclear conditions.

It also will consist of range firing of larger weapons and the training will be concluded with a division on August 23.

Last year the local unit scored well on its training and is looking forward to bringing its members up to a high degree of efficiency during the field training.

Double Sets Up Real Swindle

By OSWALD JACOBY

Written for NEA Service

Today's hand is an example of a perfect swindle. The perpetrator of the crime was my old friend, Harry Fishbein, one of the really great players of all time.

Harry started proceedings by his weak jump overcall of two spades. This bid failed to slow up the opponents and two rounds later North bid five clubs, to show the ace of that suit.

At this point Harry perpetrated his swindle. He doubled!

This didn't keep South from going to six hearts, but it sure kept him from making it. West opened the four of clubs and South went right up with dummy's ace. He was sure that Harry's double showed several clubs to the king and was afraid of a ruff. Also, he still had the trump finesse to fall back on, plus the chance that the club lead was a singleton in which case he could eventually discard two clubs on dummy's diamonds and maybe wind up with some sort of a success.

Naturally, none of this came up. West made both his kings and Harry had put over a bid that Larceny Lou himself would have been proud of.

Your partner bids four diamonds over your four clubs. What do you do?

List 21 Polio Cases In '58

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The State Health Department said Tuesday one new polio case was reported in West Virginia last week, bringing to 21 the number of new cases recorded so far this year.

Last week's new case in Kanawha County, compared with two reported the corresponding week a year ago. At this time last year, 10 new cases had been reported in the Mountain State.

State Health Director N. H. Dyer also said 26 new cases of tuberculosis were recorded last week, the same number registered the week before. The total of TB cases for the year now stands at 557, compared with 505 at the same time in 1957.

Backstairs At White House

By DAYTON MOORE
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Backstairs at the White House: President Eisenhower cancelled plans to participate in the current civil defense exercise, "Operation Alert," because of the Mideast crisis. Before the revolt in Iraq, he had planned to fly by helicopter to one of the secret sites set up for emergency evacuation of the federal government in case of attack.

However, he never intended to spend more than an hour or so at the emergency headquarters in this year's exercise. Last year, the President and key members of his White House staff made a full-fledged evacuation by helicopter to his secret, emergency headquarters.

The current exercise was designed primarily to test emergency communications. It started in May and will end in about two weeks.

For tourists who may wonder about the ditch being dug parallel to Pennsylvania Avenue in the White House north lawn: It is for some new telephone and electrical cables for the Executive Mansion.

White House aides still are shaking their heads in amazement over the Canadians letting a newsman caddy for the President when he played golf on his recent good will visit to Ottawa. It is not planned to make any complaints, even unofficial, to the Canadians. But the President's staff is determined to make sure that it never happens again.

In making the routine check on the President's caddy, White House aides were told that he would be a member of the Ottawa Hunt and Golf Club. And he was. But he also was a sports writer for the Ottawa Journal.

The caddy-sports writer, Edward McCabe, thus scored a first on covering Eisenhower's golf game. He wrote for his paper a detailed stroke-by-stroke, comment-by-comment on the President's round—about 1700 words. He also gave the United Press International and the Associated Press shorter, but still detailed stories on the round.

White House aides didn't learn that McCabe also was a reporter until later. And even then, they didn't believe he would write a story on the President's game. They expected that he would observe what they believed was universal, at least continental, knowledge that the President permitted little publicity on his golf game.

Stahl Dubious On Road Plan

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—West Virginia Turnpike General Manager W. E. Stahl said Wednesday he was dubious that the northern end of the turnpike could be incorporated as part of Interstate Route 64.

Stahl said such would probably necessitate construction of one new bridge and widening of another over the 14-mile route from Charleston to Chelyan. This section has been mentioned as a possible part of Route 64 which will cut across the state from Huntington to White Sulphur Springs.

Stahl pointed out long-range plans call for the turnpike to become a part of another north-south interstate route to follow generally the route of U. S. 21. He said he personally did not think it feasible for Interstate 64 to use part of the road.

Improper Timbering Blamed In Fatal Mine Accident

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Improper timbering has been blamed as the major cause of a roof-fall May 28 at a coal mine in Barrett, W. Va., the United Mine Workers union said Tuesday. Four miners were killed in the accident.

The UMW said the U. S. Bureau of Mines had determined that the fall resulted from removal of certain timbers, a failure to provide conventional timbering in certain sections of the mine, and failure to comply with provisions of the roof-bolting permit.

The federal report also recommended permanent supports in certain timbers, a failure to provide Great Britain is buying more tobacco from the United States. Imports from U.S. in 1957 rose to 168.3 million pounds.
